CHIEF JUSTICE EARL WARREN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Chief Justice Earl Warren, who has presided during one of the most liberal and controversial periods in Supreme Court history, is reported to have submitted his resignation.

United Press International learned from responsible sources that the 77-year-old architect of school desegregation and other decisions in the civil liberties field sent a letter of resignation to President Johnson at about the time the court completed its 1967-68 term on Monday.

The White House had no immediate comment.

It was not learned whether Warren specified a date on which he wanted to step down from the nation's highest judicial post, to which President Dwight D. Eisenhower appointed him Oct. 1, 1953.

Should this come before the November elections, President

Johnson would have the opportunity of selecting a new chief justice. Otherwise, the choice will fall to the next chief executive.

Delay not Unusual

The White House sometimes delays announcement of resignations at such high levels, especially when there have been prior reports of an impending change.

Rumors of Warren's impending retirement began to surface several months ago. At that time, it was reported that Johnson was considering as a successor Arthur J. Goldberg, then ambassador to the United Nations and a former Supreme Court justice.

Goldberg subsequently resigned the U.N. post in a rather chilly exchange with the President, which might preclude any consideration of him to head the court at this time.

Foremost among those mentioned as likely to succeed Warren, if Johnson makes the choice, is Justice Abe Fortas, a longtime and very close confidant of the President, who appointed him to the court.

If the decision fell to Johnson and he chose Fortas, it would mark the first time a Jew has ever headed the high court. The President already had made history by naming the first Negro to the court—Thurgood Marshall, who took the oath as associate justice last Oct. 2.

Decisions Criticized

During Warren's 15-year tenure as the nation's 14th chief justice, he often has come under bitter personal attack because of some of the court's decisions. The John Birch Society and other groups have called for his impeachment.

These outcries have died down to some extent in recent years, but critics in Congress and the South still refer to "the Warren court" when criticizing its actions.

The most recent set to between the lawmakers and the justices resolved around the court's limitations on admission of confessions and eyewitness testimony in criminal cases. The anticrime bill signed into law by the President Wednesday seeks to override those decisions, in a provision drafted in the Senate.

Another politically unpopular decision of late held that states must adhere to the "one-man, one-vote" ruling in apportioning their legislatures. In the term just ended, the court went a step further by voting to extend the rule to local government units as well.

Civil Rights Theme

Warren would leave the court in an atmosphere much like that which prevailed just after he took office—controversy over civil rights.

On its final day of the term just ended, the court ruled that under an 1866 law, Negroes are entitled to full equality in the purchase and rental of housing.

It was on May 17, 1954, that Warren—barely a year in the post—read for a unanimous court the landmark ruling that racial discrimination in public education is unconstitutional. The implementation of that decision, and issues relating to it touched off violence—even death. It remains a major social and judicial problem.

Warren was in the midst of a third term as California governor when he was appointed to the Supreme Court.

Warren had come to the political fore in 1948, when he was Gov. Thomas E. Dewey's running mate on the Republican presidential ticket.

17 in Dutchess Drug Net, Fifteen Men, 2 Teen Girls

By WALTER S. CLARK JR.

Climaxing a three-month narcotics investigation in the Dutchess County communities of the City of Poughkeepsie and the Town of Poughkeepsie, authorities Thursday swooped down on several places and took 17 persons into custody.

One of Largest in Years

The sweeping action by authorities resulted from a pooling of information by State Police and Town authorities that had been uncovered through routine investigation by officers of the two police agencies. It was recorded as one of the largest single raids in the area in many years.

The accused defendants included the daughter of a Dutchess County leading public official. She was not involved in the narcotics phase of yesterday's police action, according to officials.

Fifteen men and two teenage girls were among those booked after the raids that were staged simultaneously in various places at 6 p. m.

State Police Lieut. Samuel J. Crodelle, Troop K zone commander at Fishkill, said that 30 state troopers and town policemen took part in the raids. Crodelle, who figured prominently in the investigation and yesterday's action, said a quantity of "pep" pills marijuana, instruments including pipes used for administration of drugs and other materials were seized by members of the raiding party.

Months Uncovering Data

District Attorney John R. Hellman Jr., State Police Major Richard Sampson, Capt. Richard Boland and Crodelle, with Town Police Chief Charles Schade and Detective Lieut. Richard Hellman had conferred for some time to plan yesterday's massive raids.

Crodelle said that for the last few months town and state police had conducted investigations to uncover information about narcotics traffic and use in the Towns of Poughkeepsie and Wappingers.

According to Crodelle the information was pooled together and the schedule of the crackdown was arranged. "We decided that Thursday should be 'D' (drugs) day," Crodelle said, "and at 6 p. m. the 30 troopers and town policemen assembled and were assigned as teams, one trooper and one town policeman."

At 6 p. m. the activity was launched. The raiding parties were at their assigned places, which included 30 Kelsey Road in Arlington. Four men and two teenage girls were taken into custody at that address.

Warrants for arrest and search warrants had been obtained by police officials from Poughkeepsie Town Justice Lyle B. Quick and the Poughkeepsie City Court.

Authorities described some of those arrested as "the bearded, long haired type of males," and one police official said "some sure looked like hippies."

According to Town Police Lieut. Robert H. Hornick, one youth seized in the raids was booked for desecration of the American flag. He was said to have taken a flag from his pocket and used it for a handkerchief to clear his nose. Hornick identified the youth as Randall Tinkelman, 19, of Freedom Plains Road, Pleasant Valley. Tinkelman also was charged with criminal sale of drugs, according to the lieutenant.

Others booked for criminal sale of dangerous drugs were identified as:

Others Booked

Michael Gregory, 18, of 6 Memory Lane, Town of Poughkeepsie; Richard Poillucci, 21, of 23 Meadow Drive Wap-pingers Falls; George Whitesell, 22, of 76 Montgomery Street, Poughkeepsie; Thomas Moffett, 21, of 85 North Road, Poughkeepsie; Robert Martin, 23, of 31 Garden Street, Hyde Park; Paul Stephens, 18, of Dorsey Lane, Hyde Park; and John Rutois, 21, of Chelsea Ridge Apartments, Wappingers Falls.

Judge Quick at arraignment of eight defendants adjourned the hearings and held each in bail of $2,500. Tinkelman also was committed in lieu of an additional bail of $5,000 fixed by the judge on the desecration

Tied to Spending Cut

Surcharge - All But Here

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate passed and sent to President Johnson today the long-debated bill adding a 10 per cent surcharge to individual and corporate income taxes and ordering a $6 billion federal spending cut.

The Senate vote completed congressional action on the first federal income tax increase since 1951, at the time of the Korean war.

Johnson is expected to sign the bill into law promptly although he has said repeatedly he does not favor the spending restrictions in the legislation. The Senate was told in the final debate on the compromise measure that it was stern fiscal medicine necessary to prevent inflation leading to financial chaos.

Opponents contended that it would mean drastic reductions in spending on social programs and that the result would be cutbacks in already inadequate efforts to help the nation's poor.

Passed in House

The House passed the measure Thursday night 268-150.

Its key provisions originally were adopted in the Senate 53-35 April 2 as an amendment to a House bill.

Johnson has said spending restrictions may force cutbacks in federal programs he considers already at rock-bottom levels.

The surcharge is retroactive for individuals to April 1 and for corporations to Jan. 1. It is scheduled to expire June 30 next year unless the new administration and Congress decide to extend it.

The increase, to go into effect 15 days after presidential approval, will apply to all individuals except those at the bottom of the scale—single persons with $1,000 or less of taxable income and couples with $2,000 or less.

The surcharge, along with other tax provisions in the bill, will bring in an estimated $15.5 billion in extra revenue to help improve the government's dismal fiscal picture in the next year.

The measure also includes a variety of other provisions retained by Senate-House conferees out of a wide-range series of riders tacked onto the legislation in the Senate.

One of the most important of these will put off for a year, to July 1, 1969, the freeze provision on federal matching for aid to families with dependent children included in the 1967 Social Security Act.

Under this provision, the federal government would have limited its aid to the same proportion of a state's children which that state had on the welfare rolls in the first three months of 1968.

Its repeal has been an objective of the Poor People's Campaign. Leaders of the campaign have objected even more strenuously to a compulsory work provision for mothers in the 1967 law; that is not changed in the tax bill.

Essential: Mills

Chairman Wilbur D. Mills, D-Tex., of the Ways and Means Committee told the House

Thursday passage of the bill was essential to meet the gravest fiscal situation the United States has faced since World War II.

Mills also told some Democrats concerned about possible cuts in administration programs that it would not be necessary to take any of the $6 billion out of welfare, education, health or urban affairs projects.

On the same day, however, the House Appropriations Committee, in acting on a bill for the Health, Education and Welfare and Labor departments, slashed $300 million from Johnson's request for the antipoverty program and $200 million from elementary and secondary education outlays.

The spending controls sections in the tax bill provides that the President must make cuts to reach the $6 billion total to the extent that Congress itself does not achieve this in acting on appropriations bills.

VC Rockets Slam Saigon, Women in Guerrilla Raids

By JACK WALSH

SAIGON (UPI)—The Viet Cong today hit Saigon with the heaviest terror shelling in nine days. Guerrilla bands including a company of 60 women in uniform attacked outlying villages and military posts.

A rain of 122mm and 107mm rockets slammed into Saigon residential areas, killing six persons including three refugee children and wounded 20 other persons. The barrage—bloodiest since June 12—also hit Tan Son Nhut Airbase but did little damage to the military field.

North of Saigon, in Lam Dong province, U.S. spokesmen said a Viet Cong battalion including the women wearing jungle fatigues seized the village of Bao Luc temporarily. They said the male and female guerrillas warned the villagers against aiding anti-Communist forces and then faded back into the jungle.

Guerrillas Hit Bridge

In next door Long Khanh province, 50 miles northeast of Saigon, government spokesmen said Viet Cong bands swarmed at about 200 militiamen guarding a bridge on highway 20, a major supply route. The Reds mined the bridge and inflicted "heavy" casualties on the defenders, the spokesmen said. Other fighting nearby was reported by the South Vietnamese officials.

U.S. B52 Stratofortresses throughout the night continued their bombardment of the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese forces threatening the capital with a third major attack in five months.

The big jet bombers also struck just below the North Vietnam border where scattered ground fighting was reported. Over North Vietnam Thursday U.S. jets in 129 missions destroyed five bridges, five antiaircraft sites, 35 trucks and 12 supply boats in attacks on the southern panhandle supply lines.

U.N. Secretary General Thant has called the Red bombardment of Saigon "barbarism." Nguyen Dinh Lan, a South Vietnamese official who surveyed the damage of today's predawn shelling, described it as "horrible."

At least 10 six-foot-two 122mm and 107mm rockets blew apart a stucco, stone, cement and stick buildings in the capital's thickly populated northern outskirts. Some hit Tan Son Nhut Airport but hit no Americans.

One rocket shattered a garage where two Vietnamese families had sought shelter after their houses were destroyed in the Viet Cong February Tet invasion of the city. The blast killed three children all under six years of age and wounded seven other persons.

"They had already gone through enough suffering," said Lan.

Dinh Kha Giao, a government official, crawled from the wreckage of his home.

"I had just gone to bed and was sleeping in a different room than where I normally sleep. My wife and four persons were up on the second floor. When the rocket hit, it landed on the first floor and the second floor just collapsed with no one on it receiving so much as a scratch. "But my poor granddaughter was asleep below and she must have died instantly," he said. Giao's mother-in-law and a man suffered wounds.

Message for Negotiator

The Vietnamese turned over and over in his hands a fragment of the rocket. "I think I will take this to Paris and I will show Mr. Thuan Thuy what kind of military objectives they are hitting," he said.

Thuy is the chief Hanoi delegate to the U.S. North Vietnam preliminary peace talks in Paris. Despite a tide of world opinion and pleas by U.S. delegates, Thuy has said Hanoi has no control over the terror shelling of Saigon.

CAUGHT—Sharon Bennett is escorted by policemen after police raided a luxuriously furnished four-story brownstone on Manhattan's fashionable upper east side. Police said they found at least nine girls and several visiting businessmen and conventioners—all in the nude—partying in the house equipped with a swimming pool, a sauna bath, room-sized circular beds and a game room with ping pong and billiards. Four girls were arrested and charged with prostitution. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

That's Some Summer

ALBANY, N. Y. (AP)—A touch of blowing snow and a crust of icy glazed Adirondack peaks as summer dawned over New York State today. The Weather Bureau said the weekend would be more summerlike.

The season arrived at 4:13 a. m. as overnight temperatures settled into the 40s in many places and dipped to 30 at the weather station atop Whiteface Mountain, in the Adirondacks. The mercury hovered at 38 at Elmira, in the Southern Tier.

By comparison, Ulster County was relatively balmy with an overnight low of 50 degrees recorded at 4 a. m. by the city engineer's office.

Hijacked Airliner Back

CARACAS (UPI)—A jet airliner flew to safety today from a Cuban city where it was forced to land by a hijacker who threatened to blow it out of the sky with a hand grenade.

The Viasa Airlines DC9, carrying five crewmen and 76 passengers, was hijacked late Wednesday during a flight between Santo Domingo and Curacao. It was released by Cuban authorities late Thursday and made its scheduled stop in Curacao to disembark some of the passengers before continuing to its final destination of Caracas.

Brass Tacks

By LYNN MULVANEY

HOW MANY TIMES we have heard, "It's hard to beat THE organization candidate?"

In light of Tuesday's primary perhaps the statement would be more credible if it said, "It's hard to beat a candidate with AN organization—especially a vigorous, grassroots type such as the victorious Paul O'Dwyer and H. Clark Bell had working for them."

Of course, O'Dwyer had some New York City Reform Democrats backing for the senatorial nomination, but surely his conquering THE organization-picked Eugene Nickerson and money-spending Joe Resnick, called for more than that.

O'Dwyer spent little or few dollars on advertising, he was little known outside of New York City, where he once served as councilman, and his tours around the state were mostly quiet, one-man journeys, without entourage. At one time he even had to scrounge around various counties in order to get enough signatures on his designating petition.

But, something happened in the interim that oddly enough seemed to escape many political observers, especially those who automatically felt THE organization man, Nickerson, would win.

WHILE O'DWYER was quietly going about his business of explaining to the voters that peace in Vietnam was the prime issue in the campaign, supporters of presidential hopeful and peace candidate, Eugene McCarthy were going about the business of adding O'Dwyer's picture to their numerous campaign headquarters throughout the state, adding him to their speech-making and, in effect, adding him to their campaign. They thereby made him a beneficiary of AN organization and an organization that seems to be going places with its latest coup—the winning of 63 out of 123 of the state's elected delegates pledged to McCarthy.

It is an especially strange involvement in that the organization working for McCarthy is, in the main, a group of political amateurs. And, bucking the pros usually spells disaster.

Now however, an organization of people—many people with a cause and a fervor and the drive to work, have made themselves heard.

IN THE CASE of H. Clark Bell's win over Peter J. Savago for the GOP assembly nomination, it too, was AN organization bucking THE organization.

No amount of pressure could dissuade the apparent army of supporters of Bell from putting forth an astounding, skillfully planned effort in his behalf.

Like the McCarthy-O'Dwyer backers, they were perhaps finally rebelling at organization autonomy and wanted instead, a voice in the future.

Pueblo Case Is Becoming 1968 Issue

By LEWIS GULICK

WASHINGTON (AP) — Nearly five months after the North Korean seizure of the U.S. intelligence ship Pueblo and its men, the incident is becoming something of a campaign issue.

A Republican party document lists the Pueblo affair as the most dramatic illustration of its charge that America's might has weakened and its prestige abroad crumpled under Democratic leadership.

A fledgling Remember the Pueblo Committee is trying to drum up support among Republicans and candidates for its call to use force if necessary to free the ship and its imprisoned crew.

Patient Talks Favored

Secretary of Defense Clark Clifford says patient negotiations, not precipitate action, will ultimately win back the vessel and its 82 surviving crewmen.

Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, running for the Democratic presidential nomination, has seen "some indication" the North Koreans may release the captives but has not gotten into specifics.

The administration reports no progress in the lengthening negotiations of Panmunjom over their return.

According to the U.S. version this is what happened in the crisis-provoking incident of Jan. 23.

The 906-ton Pueblo, a World War II Army cargo ship recently recommissioned with the latest electronic eavesdropping gear, was patrolling 17 miles off North Korea's Wonsan harbor at midday when a North Korean sub chaser showed up.

The gunboat signaled "Heave to or I will open fire."

The Pueblo's reply: "I am in international waters."

An hour later three more North Korean naval vessels joined the sub chaser. With MIG jet fighters zooming overhead, the sub chaser then backed toward the Pueblo and an armed boarding party went aboard the American ship.

The Pueblo was armed only with 50-caliber machine guns and had been under instructions to keep her weapons covered. The captain, Cmdr. Lloyd M. Bucher and his men did not engage in a naval battle, but there was apparently some fighting during the boarding.

Before Pueblo's radio went silent, it reported several men were wounded. The crew destroyed all the secret equipment they could.

All Others Alive

Fireman Duane D. Hodges of Creswell, Ore., wounded during the takeover of the ship, died. All other members of the ship's company are believed alive.

Friendly forces were not near, ready or strong enough to save the Pueblo in the brief time available after receiving the ship's SOS, Washington says.

After fruitless efforts through the United Nations, the Soviets and other diplomatic channels, to win return of the ship and crew, the U.S. government focused on direct talks with the North Koreans at Panmunjom, the Korean War Truce site.

The Panmunjom sessions—17 of them have been held to date, counting the latest on May 28—have been a standoff so far.

Finn School Paper Selected

Thomas Sims, student editor of the FINN FLASH, school newspaper at Sophie G. Finn School, has achieved this honor and one of seven New York State papers to take National honors this year.

Robert Johnson, executive director of the Ulster County TB and Health Association, noted in a letter to the staff of Finn Flash that awards have become a tradition with the newspaper. The paper has won three national awards in the last three years which Johnson says "signifies work of outstanding quality."

Also on hand were Ronald A. Le Blanc, school principal and

Mr. and Mrs. J. Terry Carlisle, school guests. Mrs. Carlisle, an ex-TB patient was guest speaker at school last Oct. 26.

Sen. Murphy Attacks LBJ Viet Policies

DUNKIRK, N.Y. (AP) — Senator George Murphy (R., Calif.) unleashed a broad attack on President Johnson's Vietnam policies Thursday night saying they were aimed at not winning the war.

Murphy spoke to nearly 500 persons at the annual $35-a-plate fund raising dinner of the Chautauque County Republican Committee held here.

He labeled the Vietnam policies as "contrived confusion" and added "any military man will tell you that we should have won the war and been out of there two years ago."

The 63-year-old onetime movie actor said "Military decisions in Vietnam should be made by military experts over there, and not by civilians 12,000 miles away."

The recent Johnson decision to stop the bombing in portions of Vietnam has resulted in "the needless killing of more American troops," he added.

"He (Johnson) is not going to walk away from his record as long as I can talk," Murphy thundered at one point.

Air Pilot Nearing End Of His Saga in Atlantic

PALM BEACH, Fla. (UPI)—Airline pilot Hugo Vihlen fought a headwind and the surging Gulfstream current early today in an effort to bring his six-foot sailboat, April Fool, ashore to a place in nautical history.

Nearing the end of a 4,100-mile crossing of the Atlantic from Africa, the 36-year-old Vihlen popped up suddenly late Thursday only six miles off Miami Beach. He left his cramped sea home after 83 days to borrow a yacht's marine telephone to call his wife.

She wasn't at home. Blonde, anxious Johnnie Vihlen, 32, was out in one of the many boats which had been hunting Vihlen in the stormy Atlantic for nearly four days since he was reported off the north coast of Cuba.

He asked the Miami marine operator in a garbled message to "Give my mother my love" and added—apparently an admonition for his mother—"Don't come looking for me."

Shortly afterward, Vihlen boarded his tiny tublike boat which a Navy submarine officer said looked like "a peddler's wagon" and disappeared in darkness.

Vihlen was last seen by a plane Thursday, bobbing northward at about five miles an hour in the Gulfstream. Aboard the plane were pilot D. W. Doran and Mrs. Janet Thorn, a reporter for the Homestead News-Leader.

"We made five passes at about 100 feet altitude over him," said Mrs. Thorn. "He motioned his arms toward the north, apparently indicating he was unable to sail shoreward."

The bearded Vihlen's best chance of ending his voyage today appeared to be Palm Beach where the Gulfstream sweeps inward to the closest point to shore it reaches.

Vihlen, who hoped to become the man who has sailed the smallest boat across the Atlantic, set sail from Casablanca, North Africa, March 29. His craft was meticulously designed to be unsinkable and to ride with the roughest waves like a cork.

He was sighted intermittently by passing ships in the wide reaches of the Atlantic, but on the last leg of his voyage he dropped out of sight for a month.

Vote For Peace?

New York State voters had a choice in the selection of a candidate for the office of United States Senator in the recent primary election and the results were decisive.

The Legislature in 1967 passed the direct primary elections bill which replaced party conventions for the nomination of candidates for state-wide offices. The bill gives the rank and file members of a political party a voice in naming candidates. Heretofore, they had little choice but to sanction the selection of political leaders, often "hand-picked" by someone in upper political echelons.

The enrolled voters made their influence felt in the victory of Paul O'Dwyer in the three-way contest for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. Political pundits had prophesied that the race would actually be between Eugene Nickerson, the regular party choice, and Congressman Joseph Y. Resnick, supporter of the Johnson administration. These two hopefuls finished second and third respectively.

O'Dwyer, a supporter of Eugene McCarthy, entered the race for the main purpose of giving those favoring McCarthy's presidential bid a standard bearer in the presidential race. His astounding success was the result of his identification with Eugene McCarthy on the issue of peace or war in Vietnam.

O'Dwyer says the stunningly unexpected vote for him should be interpreted as a vote for peace instead of war.

Nickerson said the outcome of the contest was based on the "cause of peace." Seventy per cent of the recorded vote was for these two men, who, though opponents, shared the same deep reservations about the Vietnam war.

Resnick backed Humphrey and supported President Johnson's policies.

The Representative from the 28th Congressional District, who admits spending a million dollars in the primary campaign, says he will not run again for public office. His four hectic years as this area's representative in Congress will long be remembered.

Lottery and Education

New York State lottery sales for the first full year of operation cannot be said to be a great success in providing a new source of money for public education in the state.

Ticket sales totaled $62,435,558.

Education received $34,345,103, about 55 per cent.

The winners received $18,480,650, nearly 30 per cent.

Administration and other costs accounted for $9,619,805, over 15 per cent.

That is not exactly a spectacular return for education from all the fuss and bother it took to enlist the cooperation of the citizens of the state. Except for the return to those who took the risk in the hope of profiting by it, the lottery was disappointing.

Some sponsors of the controversial lottery bill estimated a return of $360 million annually. Tax department officials have disowned that figure, attributing it to faulty arithmetic of overly zealous proponents. However, the lottery produced more revenue than the estimated yields of other new tax measures approved during the 1968 legislative session. These included raising the gasoline tax another cent a gallon, boosting the cigarette tax two cents a pack, raising the parimutuel betting pool one half of one per cent and increasing other business taxes.

After this run in New York and the earlier one in New Hampshire, both of which are continuing, the lottery has not proven so productive that large or small states would find it lucrative for helping to finance public education.

If New York State, with its concentration of population, wealth and outlets for distribution, could do no better than this in the first full year of operation, the lottery method of financing education still has to be proven. At best, it is still an experiment. Other states thinking of it as the pot of gold at the end of the rainbow had better watch it for another year or more before plunging into it.

So many credit cards are lost or stolen that they enable strangers to mulct businessmen of millions of dollars a year. There is a bill in Congress requiring the issuer to mail cards by registered letter and only when they are requested. Too many credit cards are offered to names and addresses found in the telephone book.

Is Welfare Program Properly Administered?

WASHINGTON — Do we really have a lot of poor people in America? Even if there are a small number, are they being neglected? Have we no state or city agencies that have welfare workers to look after the poor?

Why does it seem necessary for the capital of a country as rich as the United States to be subjected to a "demonstration" and a "march of the poor"? How much of all this is a piece of dramatic politics, and how much of it is genuinely due to the failure of state and city authorities to do their duty? How much arises from the failure of the federal government to furnish the necessary funds and see that they are properly spent?

Practically every city has a welfare department. Nearly every locality has a special division to take care of children whose parents have abandoned them. Every community has several churches or charitable institutions which not only help the needy but, if their own funds are insufficient, can notify public agencies about cases of real hardship. When there is neglect or actual hunger among their constituents, why don't congressmen and senators bring this to the attention of the proper authorities? Ours is, after all, a representative system of government. Why were any "demonstrations" necessary?

The "march of the poor" in Washington has needy persons in it, and a prominent display was made of them camping in shanties near what is perhaps the most revered spot in the nation's capital—the Lincoln Memorial. It has been noted, however, that some of the leaders have been traveling around in Cadillac and have been housed in far more luxurious quarters.

Eventually the whole story will come out. It will reveal that exhibitionists sought a way to get publicity as they made sweeping demands that could not be met and threatened the federal government if there was not immediate action.

Notwithstanding all this, there are faults in the distribution of food to the poor, and a "show" of this kind has served to focus attention on necessary reforms which at last are starting to be achieved. A slow-moving executive department can perhaps be prodded to cut through red tape and get more done for the needy who are deserving but may be neglected.

The United States is far from being a poor nation, and federal, state and city governments are spending about 10 billion dollars a year for "welfare." The big question before the country today is how to avoid tragic instances of hunger and malnutrition among the poor. At the same time some way must be found to check up on the inefficiencies in government which permit agencies to become involved in red tape, while funds go to the "chiselers" and help is not provided for those who really need it.

Perhaps the most important thing congress could do would be to make a thorough investigation of conditions throughout the country as far as the poor are concerned, and to disclose the facts. How many of the "poor" are actually without food? Is food available to them but not being properly distributed? How many of those receiving "welfare" of one kind or another are unwilling to accept jobs or job training? How many women are living with men who are not their husbands and having more and more illegitimate children so as to draw larger relief payments from the government? To what extent are "anti-poverty" programs being used for political purposes? All this needs to be looked into, and congress has the committees to do the job.

Meanwhile, it would take a relatively small sum to make sure that all Americans are fed. There should be no delay in helping the hungry. Nor should there be any delay in getting at the truth about the misuse of "relief" and "welfare" money by people who are able-bodied but refuse to work, either because they are too lazy or because it is easy to fool the relief authorities. It might well be found that the money saved by eliminating the amounts being paid to the "chiselers" would be more than adequate to take care of those unfortunate who are not able to take care of themselves.

Certainly the innocent should not suffer with the guilty, and the truly poor people should get the help they need.

Washington Uneasy Over Berlin Travel Restrictions

By PETER LISAGOR

Chicago Daily News Service

WASHINGTON — The administration's permissive attitude toward the new squeeze on West Berlin by the East German communists is explained here by a host of complex factors, including the Vietnam-imposed restraint on U.S. policies abroad.

Official Washington is uneasy and irritated by what president Johnson has called "totally unprovoked and unjustified aggravation" of Berlin's precarious plight.

But it is in no mood to retaliate for the imposition of visa restrictions, higher transit fees, and eventual passport requirements placed upon West Germany travelers and goods, with the obvious approval of the Soviet Union.

Administration officials are divided on the latest threat to the encircled city, a division that contributes to the policy of inaction.

Some top authorities have warned against being "more German than the Germans," a pointed allusion to Bonn's own compliant response. As long as Bonn accepts the restrictions as the price of its policy of improving relations with other eastern European communist countries, they argue, the United States, Britain and France cannot be expected to take stern initiatives.

Moreover, these officials say that the access rights of the three western powers remain undisturbed. The provocation is thus a limited one involving "internal movement" and no cause for a return to cold war tensions, they add.

Other officials disagree, however, saying that the three powers responsible for West Berlin's freedom cannot engage in "an Alphonse-Gaston Act" with their junior partner in the enterprise. They point out that the Soviet Union must be held accountable for the acts of the Ulbricht regime in East Germany, and only the western powers can make the case against the Russians.

A acquiescent reaction now will only serve to whet the communist appetite for additional provocations, which in time could interfere with allied access to the city and add up to a full-blown and dangerous crisis, they maintain.

Moscow will be further encouraged in the belief that Vietnam has paralyzed the United States for actions elsewhere, narrowing its interest and options, they say. The Kremlin conceivably could take advantage of the president's proclaimed desire for greater accommodations with the Soviets, the argument goes.

The Soviets may also want to heighten tension in central Europe as a means of reversing the trend in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere in eastern Europe for more freedom of action.

It is generally agreed that East Germany's motives are plainly one of forcing Bonn to recognize it as a separate, autonomous state, and that it has advanced its goals considerably by its latest move.

Bonn has two levers it can use, but both are risky and probably self-defeating, in the judgement of some.

One is the interzonal trade with the East Germans, amounting to about $600,000,000 (M) a year, or 9 per cent of the communist regime's total trade. To suspend this would hurt the East Germans because they get high-quality goods and technology, as well as favorable prices, which amounts to a subsidy.

But this has been a Bonn link, however tenuous, to ultimate reunification and worth the price in the West German calculations.

The other is the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. The Soviets are anxious that Bonn sign it as assurance against a German nuclear capacity in the future. The United States and other powers also are eager for a German signature. But the West Germans could drag their feet as a countermeasure against the East German curbs.

Bonn has committed itself to adhering to the treaty.

Networks Have Resumed Their Full Schedule of Violence

WASHINGTON — During the national anguish over Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination, the TV networks suddenly got nervous about video violence and tried to clean some of the bloodshed off the home screen.

ABC's spy series, "It Takes a Thief," dropped two assassination plots. A sniper story was discreetly edited out of the FBI series. ABC also hastily juggled episodes of "The Avengers," "Guns of Will Sonnett," and "Man in a Suitcase" in favor of something less homicidal. NBC and CBS made similar shifts in episodes of "Bonanza" and "Mannix," respectively.

Yet the networks, after a recent period of mourning, have now resumed their full schedule of violence. And they have already lined up two dozen shows for next season featuring gunplay, brutality, sadism and terror.

The National Association for Better Broadcasting estimates that the average child between ages 5 and 15 watches the violent destruction of more than 13,400 persons on TV.

"Most are gunned down," reports Frank Orme, the association's executive vice president, "but fire, rape, poison, acid, spiders, snakes, crocodiles, pitchforks, knives, time bombs, live steam, poison gas, hypodermic needles and an assortment of heavy blunt instruments are all used to add spice and variety and thrills to the spectacle of death."

Children are Victims

He fears this mass mayhem is destroying children's natural capacity for sympathy and impressing them with the need for a powerful, totalitarian flare to protect them.

"Today's television," Orme says, "teaches children that violence is fun, evil is powerful, and the world around and beyond us is full of unknown terrors. Our cherished institutions and concepts are weak and subject to imminent destruction by callous brutes. To survive

we must delegate the job of protection to powerful, single-dimension individuals who disregard the non-violent, democratic processes."

For all their remorse over the slaying of another Kennedy, the networks have made clear that they will continue to glamorize gunplay as long as it wins mass audience ratings and sponsors' dollars. concerned parents can keep their home screens fit for children is to retaliate against the sponsors who pay for TV violence. As a start, we have asked the better broadcasting group, which has kept a critical eye on TV for 17 years, to list the ten shows most harmful to children. We have looked up the sponsors who keep these shows on the air.

Most Harmful Shows

1. The Avengers, ABC, Wednesdays. This show, which the NABT calls "horrific" and "disgraceful," has been sponsored by American Home Products, American Tobacco, Armour, Beecham, California Prune, Carnation, Champion Spark Plug, Colgate-Palmolive, DuPont, General Electric, Goodyear Tire, S. C. Johnson, L & M Tobacco, Mennen, Pittsburgh Plate Glass, Polaroid, Procter & Gamble, Seven-U, Sterling Drug, Studebaker, Sunbeam, Wm. Underwood, Warner, Lambert, and Yardley of London.

2. Felony Squad, ABC, Mondays. The NABT calls this "a vicious, excessively violent and morbid show." It has been sponsored by AC Spark Plug, Armour, DuPont, L & M Tobacco, Noxell, Schlitz Brewing, Shell Oil and State Farm Insurance.

3. Guns of Will Sonnett, ABC Fridays. This is described by NABT as "a shoddy western" that is "highly objectionable for children." Its sponsors have included AC Spark Plug, Bell Telephone, Brown and Williamson, Carter, Wallace, Colgate, Palmolive, Cool-Ray, R. T. French, International Playtex, Levi Strauss, Plymouth, and State Farm Insurance.

U. S. Underground

Sabotage Aimed at War Effort

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — With violence, one thing leads to another.

Shouting protesters are shouldered aside by those who preach violence. These violent men, in turn, are eclipsed by those who push hate and greater violence.

The destruction of draft board records, the college violence and city riots have encouraged some persons as yet unknown to circulate 327 U. S. anti-Vietnam war groups with proposals for a loose nationwide underground aimed at burning and violent sabotage.

It is worth-while studying the tactics advocated by these anonymous persons because they parallel closely the methods used successfully by subversive groups of the extreme left and right in Asia and Europe.

Let us look then at excerpts from their anonymous proposals.

"Already we can see two tactical foci for a successful strategy of obstructing the replenishing of U. S. Army manpower: (1) Destruction of buildings and property which are used for the process of induction and (2) indirect harassment directed against the property of individuals involved in Selective Service work, in hopes of discouraging some from continuing their employment with Selective Service."

"The success of such a program, which really can obstruct Selective Service, depends on total secrecy and total decentralization. At most, a bare handful of people in a city here or in a community there should be aware of the actions of others in the same city or community. If someone is arrested for firebombing a local board in Boston, he cannot be brutalized by the police into revealing operations in New York, in Chicago or in San Francisco. He simply doesn't know who these individuals are."

One of the main practical considerations favoring tactics of sabotage, is the lessened chance of the movement being decimated by arrests."

"The ultimate success of a program of sabotage demands that no attempts be made as acts of desperation which run a high risk of arrest. Ultimate success demands that if a given action runs even a fair risk of arrest, that it not be undertaken. There are enough targets connected with Selective Service — draft boards, induction centers, recruiting booths — so that a period of 'shopping around' will eventually lead to a vulnerable target. (Other government agencies and war industries closely linked with the war effort provide additional targets.) The area is staked out for a period of days or weeks, the action is planned, materials are gathered, the target is hit — that's all."

"Only one person — or at the most two or three people — knows of the action. There is no giant web of conspirators to spring leaks. There are, hopefully, no romantic kids involved who have to blabber to some pal or girl friend. Individuals who will be committed to this type of direct obstruction of the military will not be glory-seeking idealists. They will

Complacent FCC

The list of TV horror shows is lengthy; too long to be carried in full here. More will be listed in a future column.

Meanwhile, it should be noted that only rarely has the Federal Communications Commission taken exception to TV programming. Ordinarily the FCC automatically renews a TV license when it expires at the end of the three-year period. Two FCC commissioners, Kenneth Cox and Nick Johnson, recently issued a scathing indictment of their fellow commissioners for this automatic renewal policy.

President Johnson has a vacancy to fill on the FCC right now and can greatly improve TV programming by picking a commissioner who will side with the present Johnson-Cox minority.

In most countries TV channels are owned by the government, not private individuals. Thus most crime programs are kept off the air. Significantly, in no other country in the world is either the juvenile delinquency rate or the crime rate as high as in the United States.

One way to change this, without resorting to government ownership, is for the public to exert its influence on the companies which sponsor crime and horror, by both writing them and refusing to buy their products.

O'Connor Was Biggest Loser

By CHARLES DUMAS

ALBANY, N.Y. AP — Probably the biggest loser in the York Primary election was an affable Democrat whose name appeared nowhere on the election ballot — Frank D. O'Connor.

O'Connor, who was his party's last nominee for governor and who now serves as New York City Council president, had hopes of reaping great political fortune from the balloting.

He had given strong and vocal support to the effort to win presidential delegates for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, in direct defiance of Robert F. Kennedy, before Kennedy's death.

With Kennedy's passing from the political scene, the New York Democratic party was left without a leader of acknowledged comparable stature — and O'Connor clearly had designs on the role.

Some Democrats saw State Chairman John J. Burns as the logical man to run the show. But O'Connor indirectly dismissed Burns, a Kennedy man, and said elected officials should be the real leaders.

Obviously, as the highest elected Democrat in New York City, O'Connor had himself in mind.

Rather than try to win over dominant Kennedy wing of the New York party, O'Connor staked his hopes on a big Humphrey victory in the primary — on the proven theory that political power descends on those who win elections.

But Humphrey finished a dismal fourth in the New York delegate derby, behind the forces of U.S. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, the Kennedy faction and a collection of uncommitted delegates.

While the day was lost for O'Connor, there is still some hope, however, that he can make his Humphrey — backing turn the trick for him.

It all depends on whether Humphrey can capture the Democratic presidential nomination, win the November election and thus wield the political power of the White House in O'Connor's behalf.

Whether Humphrey would be willing to bestow such a reward on O'Connor must be a matter of conjecture, for the time being at least.

O'Connor does have one other avenue toward his goal of New York party control — the possibility that Gov. Rockefeller may appoint New York Mayor John V. Lindsay to fill Kennedy's vacant seat.

If the Republican mayor decamped for the Senate, O'Connor automatically would succeed to the mayorality of New York City — a possibility that many other Democrats have wielded in the past to establish their leadership over Democratic state affairs.

The prospect of having a Democrat move back into City Hall and resume command of city patronage makes New York Republicans go all wobbly. And that may deter any Lindsay appointment.

But, if it should happen, O'Connor wouldn't need Humphrey — although it would be nice to have him, too.

Other officials disagree, however, saying that the three powers responsible for West Berlin's freedom cannot engage in "an Alphonse-Gaston Act" with their junior partner in the enterprise. They point out that the Soviet Union must be held accountable for the acts of the Ulbricht regime in East Germany, and only the western powers can make the case against the Russians.

A acquiescent reaction now will only serve to whet the communist appetite for additional provocations, which in time could interfere with allied access to the city and add up to a full-blown and dangerous crisis, they maintain.

Moscow will be further encouraged in the belief that Vietnam has paralyzed the United States for actions elsewhere, narrowing its interest and options, they say.

The Kremlin conceivably could take advantage of the president's proclaimed desire for greater accommodations with the Soviets, the argument goes.

The Soviets may also want to heighten tension in central Europe as a means of reversing the trend in Czechoslovakia and elsewhere in eastern Europe for more freedom of action.

It is generally agreed that East Germany's motives is plainly one of forcing Bonn to recognize it as a separate, autonomous state, and that it has advanced its goals considerably by its latest move.

Bonn has two levers it can use, but both are risky and probably self-defeating, in the judgement of some.

One is the interzonal trade with the East Germans, amounting to about $600,000,000 (M) a year, or 9 per cent of the communist regime's total trade. To suspend this would hurt the East Germans because they get high-quality goods and technology, as well as favorable prices, which amounts to a subsidy.

But this has been a Bonn link, however tenuous, to ultimate reunification and worth the price, in the West German calculations.

The other is the nuclear non-proliferation treaty. The Soviets are anxious that Bonn sign it as assurance against a German nuclear capacity in the future. The United States and other powers also are eager for a German signature. But the West Germans could drag their feet as a countermeasure against the East German curbs.

Bonn has committed itself to adhering to the treaty.

Drew Pearson Says Networks Have Resumed Their Full Schedule of Violence

WASHINGTON — During the national anguish over Sen. Robert Kennedy's assassination, the TV networks suddenly got nervous about video violence and tried to clean some of the bloodshed off the home screen.

ABC's spy series, "It Takes a Thief," dropped two assassination plots. A sniper story was discreetly edited out of the FBI series. ABC also hastily juggled episodes of "The Avengers," "Guns of Will Sonnett," and "Man in a Suitcase" in favor of something less homicidal. NBC and CBS made similar shifts in episodes of "Bonanza" and "Mannix," respectively.

Yet the networks, after a decent period of mourning, have now resumed their full schedule of violence. And they have already lined up two dozen shows for next season featuring gunplay, brutality, sadism and terror.

The National Association for Better Broadcasting estimates that the average child between ages 5 and 15 watches the violent destruction of more than 13,400 persons on TV.

"Most are gunned down," reports Frank Orme, the association's executive vice president, "but fire, rape, poison, acid, spiders, snakes, crocodiles, pitchforks, knives, time bombs, live steam, poison gas, hypodermic needles and an assortment of heavy blunt instruments are all used to add spice and variety and thrills to the spectacle of death."

Children are Victims

He fears this mass mayhem is destroying children's natural capacity for sympathy and impressing them with the need for a powerful, totalitarian flare to protect them.

"Today's television," Orme says, "teaches children that violence is fun, evil is powerful, and the world around and beyond us is full of unknown terrors. Our cherished institutions and concepts are weak and subject to imminent destruction by callous brutes. To survive

we must delegate the job of protection to powerful, single-dimension individuals who disregard the non-violent, democratic processes."

For all their remorse over the slaying of another Kennedy, the networks have made clear that they will continue to glamorize gunplay as long as it wins mass - audience ratings and sponsors' dollars. concerned parents can keep their home screens fit for children is to retaliate against the sponsors who pay for TV violence. As a start, we have asked the better Broadcasting group, which has kept a critical eye on TV for 17 years, to list the ten shows most harmful to children. We have looked up the sponsors who keep these shows on the air.

Most Harmful Shows

1. The Avengers, ABC, Wednesdays. This show, which the NABB calls "horrific" and "disgraceful," has been sponsored by American Home Products, American Tobacco, Armour, Beecham, California Prune, Carnation, Champion Spark Plug, Colgate-Palmolive, DuPont, General Electric, Goodyear Tire, S. C. Johnson, L & M Tobacco, Mennen, Pittsburgh Plate Glas, Polaroid, Procter & Gamble, Seven-Up, Sterling Drug, Studebaker, Sunbeam, Wm. Underwood, Warner - Lambert, and Yardley of London.

2. Felony Squad, ABC, Mondays. The NABB calls this "a vicious, excessively violent and morbid show." It has been sponsored by AC Spark Plug, Armour, DuPont, L & M Tobacco, Noxell, Schlitz Brewing, Shell Oil and State Farm Insurance.

3. Guns of Will Sonnett, ABC, Fridays. This is described by NABB as "a shoddy western" that is "highly objectionable for children." Its sponsors have included AC Spark Plug, Bell Telephone, Brown and Williamson, Carter - Wallace, Colgate - Palmolive, Cool-Ray R. T. French, International Playtex, Levi Strauss, Plymouth, and State Farm Insurance.

U. S. Underground

Sabotage Aimed at War Effort

By RAY CROMLEY
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON (NEA) — With violence, one thing leads to another.

Shouting protesters are shouldered aside by those who preach violence. These violent men, in turn, are eclipsed by those who push hate and greater violence.

The destruction of draft board records, the college violence and city riots have encouraged some persons as yet unknown to circulate 327 U. S. anti-Vietnam war groups with proposals for a loose nationwide underground aimed at burning and violent sabotage.

It is worth-while studying the tactics advocated by these anonymous persons because they parallel closely the methods used successfully by subversive groups of the extreme left and right in Asia and Europe.

Let us look then at excerpts from their anonymous proposals:

"Already we can see two tactical foci for a successful strategy of obstructing the replenishing of U. S. Army manpower: (1) Destruction of buildings and property which are used for the process of induction and (2) indirect harassment directed against the property of individuals involved in Selective Service work, in hopes of discouraging some from continuing their employment with Selective Service."

"The success of such a program, which really can obstruct Selective Service, depends on total secrecy and total decentralization. At most, a bare handful of people in a city here or in a community there should be aware of the actions of others in the same city or community. If someone is arrested for firebombing a local board in Boston, he cannot be brutalized by the police into revealing operations in New York, in Chicago or in San Francisco. He simply doesn't know who these individuals are..."

"One of the main practical considerations favoring tactics of sabotage... is the lessened chance of the movement being decimated by arrests..."

"The ultimate success of a program of sabotage demands that no attempts be made as acts of desperation which run a high risk of arrest. Ultimate success demands that if a given action runs even a fair risk of arrest, that it not be undertaken. There are enough targets connected with Selective Service — draft boards, induction centers, recruiting booths — so that a period of 'shopping around' will eventually lead to a vulnerable 'safe' target. (Other government agencies and war industries closely linked with the war effort provide additional targets.) The area is staked out for a period of days or weeks, the action is planned, materials are gathered, the target is hit — that's all."

"Only one person — or at the most two or three people — knows of the action. There is no giant web of conspirators to spring leaks. There are, hopefully, no romantic kids involved who have to blabber to some pal or girl friend. Individuals who will be committed to this type of direct obstruction of the military will not be glory-seeking idealists... They will be ordinary students, professors, community workers, 9-to-5 office workers, teachers... who lead 'normal' lives... but who (perhaps at intervals of three to five months) will destroy property of Selective Service, or will engage in some form of harassment of its employees. They will take no great risks. They must remain out of jail in order to be able to strike again and again and again."

"In smaller towns and villages, where many draft boards are relatively old frame structures and where police patrols are spotty, simple Molotov cocktails can be thrown through windows from side streets, resulting in the same extensive damage witnessed in New York and in Detroit, but without the arrests."

"A small homemade incendiary device with a timing mechanism placed in a broom closet in a (big city) induction center could result in fire and smoke damage to the entire building, thus making it unusable for weeks or months. One person with a fair knowledge of chemistry could build such a device easily and cheaply and could plant it with almost no chance of being detected."

"Likewise, any of a number of minor actions directed against the automobiles of draft board members (such as slashing tires, breaking windows, etc.) can be effective parts of a pattern which, as it becomes widespread, will spell, first, inconvenience, later, harassment, but, finally, fear for all Americans who continue to act as tools of the Selective Service system."

O'Connor Was Biggest Loser

By CHARLES DUMAS
ALBANY, N.Y. AP

Probably the biggest loser in the York Primary election was an affable Democrat whose name appeared nowhere on the election ballot — Frank D. O'Connor.

O'Connor, who was his party's last nominee for governor and who now serves as New York City Council president, had hopes of reaping great political fortune from the balloting.

He had given strong and vocal support to the effort to win presidential delegates for Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey in direct defiance of Robert F. Kennedy, before Kennedy's death.

With Kennedy's passing from the political scene, the New York Democratic party was left without a leader of acknowledged comparable stature — and O'Connor clearly had designs on the role.

Some Democrats saw State Chairman John J. Burns as the logical man to run the show. But O'Connor indirectly dismissed Burns, a Kennedy man, and said elected officials should be the real leaders.

Obviously, as the highest elected Democrat in New York City, O'Connor had himself in mind.

Rather than try to win over dominant Kennedy wing of the New York party, O'Connor staked his hopes on a big Humphrey victory in the primary — on the proven theory that political power descends on those who win elections.

But Humphrey finished a dismal fourth in the New York delegate derby, behind the forces of U. S. Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy, the Kennedy faction and a collection of uncommitted delegates.

While the day was lost for O'Connor, there is still some hope, however, that he can make his Humphrey — backing turn the trick for him.

It all depends on whether Humphrey can capture the Democratic presidential nomination, win the November election and thus wield the political power of the White House in O'Connor's behalf.

Whether Humphrey would be willing to bestow such a reward on O'Connor must be a matter of conjecture, for the time being at least.

O'Connor does have one other avenue toward his goal of New York party control — the possibility that Gov. Rockefeller may appoint New York Mayor John V. Lindsay to fill Kennedy's vacant seat.

If the Republican mayor decamped for the Senate, O'Connor automatically would succeed to the mayoralty a post that many other Democrats have wielded in the past to establish their leadership over Democratic state affairs.

The prospect of having a Democrat move back into City Hall and resume command of city patronage makes New York Republicans go all wobbly. And that may deter any Lindsay appointment.

But, if it should happen, O'Connor wouldn't need Humphrey — although it would be nice to have him, too.

Two Drown, Bodies Are Recovered

The bodies of an 18-year-old youth who drowned in Harris Lake south of Route 32 near Plattekill, and a 24-year-old Dutchess county man who drowned in the Hudson River south of the Greene County community of Athens Saturday night, were recovered Thursday by State Police scuba divers.

State Police said Steven Anthony Poscat, of Plattekill Road, Plattekill, drowned in Harris Lake shortly before noon yesterday. Ferndale troopers said the youth leaped into the lake and was swimming to retrieve a rowboat that drifted from the shoreline swept by a strong wind, when he disappeared beneath the surface about 100 feet off shore.

Three girls witnessed the incident and notified authorities. They were identified as Irene and Joan Wager and Gayle Arrasati all of Plattekill.

State police and the Plattekill Ambulance Service attendants went to the lake. Trooper James Curtis, a scuba diver from the Ellenville State Police was summoned and he recovered the body, which was removed to the county morgue in Kingston Hospital.

Ulster County Coroner Arthur C. Chipp of Kerhonkson was at the scene of the drowning to assist in the investigation with State Police Lieut. A. F. Van Blaricum. ACL investigator L. M. Luomo, a uniformed trooper from the Ferndale barracks.

Leeds State Police today reported that the body of Lawrence Lawson, of Tivoli, who fell from a motorboat at 8:30 p. m. Saturday while cruising in the Hudson River south of Athens, was recovered at 12:35 p. m. Thursday by Trooper Warren Curtis of Selkirk, a scuba diver.

The body was found about 500 yards south of buoy 63, south of the spot where Lawson toppled from the boat, authorities said.

Lost Balance

State Police had reported previously that Lawson was a passenger in the boat with Leonard Hummel, 30, of 195 Winnikee Avenue, while the craft was heading south in the river. Authorities said.

Injured Fatally

RICHFIELD SPRINGS, N.Y. (AP) — William Shypski, 45, of Richfield Springs, was injured fatally Thursday when his automobile struck guard rails and a tree beside Route 20 near this village between Oneonta and Utica.

authorities said Lawson and Hummel were changing places in the boat while one of them checked a map when the northern Dutchess youth apparently lost his balance and fell into the water.

Troopers, deputy sheriffs and volunteers from Greene and Dutchess counties had searched the river and carried out grappling operations since the mishap occurred.

Rondout Voting Until 9 P.M. On New Budget

Taxpayers in the Rondout Valley Central School District will again be voting on a budget for the six schools in the district.

The high school cafeteria in Kyserike will be the scene of the voting which will take place between the hours of 10 a. m. and 9 p. m.

The new budget figure represents a reduction of about $33,000 from the previous figure which was defeated by the taxpayers by a 500-vote margin.

50 at Hearing

The new figure stands at $3,819,000.

The six district schools include elementary schools in Stone Ridge, Accord and Rosendale with a senior high school and a middle school in Kyserike.

The middle school, dealing with grades five through eight, is scheduled to open in September.

A public hearing was held on the new budget last night with only about 50 persons attending.

According to Dr. Ted T. Grenda, superintendent of schools, last night's hearing "was in the spirit of give and take."

He claimed that much of the discussion centered about the cost of the Board of Cooperative Educational Services and whether most of the students benefit from the service.

Dr. Grenda outlined BOCES services and claimed that all the students did, in fact, benefit.

Members of the Marbletown Civic Association declared that the school district was insensitive to the needs of the community, as represented by the high budget and the relatively small monetary cut from the previous figure which the voters defeated.

Dr. Grenda and other school officials outlined the present needs of the students and the high cost of services, claiming that the budget figure represented the best kind of school system the community could afford.

Narcotics Center Officers Blame Director for Riot

WOODBOURNE, N.Y. (UPI)—About 100 correction officers and civilian employees of the Woodbourne narcotics addiction center have blamed the state and Woodbourne director James J. Morrow for Tuesday's riot. The guards and employees, meeting Thursday night in this Sullivan County village, also asked that their weapons be returned to them by Morrow and the State Narcotics Control Commission.

State police were called in when about 400 inmates rioted for 12 hours Tuesday in what officials described as "a break-out attempt."

There were two minor injuries to guards, and damages were placed at about $2,000. Troopers used tear gas to stop the outbreak.

The correctional personnel said they had no confidence in the narcotics commission, claiming it gave distorted facts of the incident to newsmen and asked that the institution be returned to the jurisdiction of the State Corrections Commission.

Hurley Rec Program Set For Summer

The Town of Hurley Recreation Commission for West Hurley-Hurley is again sponsoring a summer recreation program for all children living in the districts of Hurley-West Hurley beginning June 24 and running every day unless rain, until Aug. 9.

This program will be held at DeWitt Lake and buses will run from behind the Hurley Reformed Church and the West Hurley Firehall every day at approximately 12:12:15 p.m. from West Hurley and 12:30 p.m. from the Hurley Church. The return trip will be around 4 p.m.

There will be a nominal daily fee to cover bus and admittance to the lake.

A varied program is planned by the certified instructors, Frank Ebelheiser, Vince Van Bramer, and Miss Karen Cudney of Hurley, and Miss Mary Connick and Van Valkenburg of West Hurley.

Last year over 400 children from both districts participated in the program at one time or another and another banner year is expected. To be eligible for the program, a participant must be entering the third grade in September.

There will be refreshments during the exhibit of Cessna aircraft and a band to play between the 11 daredevil events which follow. Lieut. Hornick said the raiders arrested Robert Brayman, 21, of 30 Kelsey Road, Town of Poughkeepsie, at that address. He was charged with maintaining a place for the use of narcotics, possession of implements used for administering dangerous drugs and possession of marijuana. Brayman was committed to jail after bail of $1,000 was fixed by Judge Quick on each of the three misdemeanor charges.

Others Nabbed

Others arrested at 30 Kelsey Road, according to Lieut. Hornick were:

Richard Schaeffer, 36, of 7 Charles Street, Roselle Park, N. J., who was charged with possession of dangerous drugs (marijuana). He was held in $1,000 bail.

Arthur Varney, 24, of Freedom Plains Road, Pleasant Valley, charged with a felony count of possession of dangerous drugs (marijuana) and possession of a firearm, a .32 caliber pistol. He pleaded guilty before Judge Quick to the weapons charge and was sentenced to 90 days in the county jail in Poughkeepsie. Bail was fixed on the drugs charge.

Loitering Charges

Police officials said two girls were arrested in the course of yesterday's raids. Authorities noted that neither was connected with the narcotics phase of the investigation, but both were charged with loitering after they were found at the Kelsey Road address. Lieut. Hornick identified the girls as Gail Schoentag, 17, of Hopewell Junction, daughter of Dutchess County executive David C. Schoentag, an attorney, and Patricia Coutant, 18, of McDonnell Heights, Town of Poughkeepsie. They were released in bail of $50 pending a hearing at a later date.

The Uruguayans—Live in a Cradle-to-Grave Welfare State

By PHIL NEWSOM
UPI Foreign News Analyst

Uruguayans are used to the good life.

In fact, for years it has been too good. And now the bills are coming in.

Uruguayans are among the best dressed in Latin America, and their children among the best educated. If their husbands work for the government—and one out of every four in Uruguay's one-million man labor force does—he can retire as early as 55 on full salary.

Each Uruguayan usually consumes four to five pounds of prime steak per week. Thousands of high-living tourists spread their money like confetti among the bars and hotels of Punta del Este, the country's seaside resort only an hour's drive from Montevideo, the capital.

For years, Uruguayans referred to their tiny state, the smallest in South America, as the "Switzerland of America" for reason of its size, its form of government based on a ruling council and the fact it had escaped the turbulence which affected both its neighbors, Argentina and Brazil.

What then can possibly be wrong? It's those bills that keep coming in to finance the huge cost of the welfare state.

In late 1966, amid mounting chaos and rumors of a takeover either by the army or the Communists on the right or the Communists on the left, the Uruguayans voted out the National Council form of government and adopted a new constitution providing for a strong president with a five-year term of office.

It did not, however, halt the demands of the Communist-dominated labor unions estimated to control half the work force or of government employees.

Government printing presses turned out paper pesos by the carload and by the end of 1967 the cost of living had jumped 130 per cent over the year before. Seven times within a year, the government devalued its currency.

In the mounting turmoil, bus drivers parked their buses across busy intersections and walked away, trash littered the streets, hospital staffs went on strike after strike.

Finally, 65-year-old President Oscar D. Gestido declared a state of siege to halt the strikes and turned to the International Monetary Fund for help. Then came the shock of his death.

His successor, Vice President Jorge Pacheco Areco, negotiated a $40 million loan from the United States and worked out new trade deals with the Soviet problems.

Union, Bulgaria, Hungary and Romania.

Faced again with mounting social and labor unrest, Pacheco in mid-June this year reconstituted the modified state of siege.

As the week ended, he appeared to be winning his fight to restore order. But he still had not solved Uruguay's new trade deals with the Soviet problems.

Last Annual Dinner Of County TB Group

The past service and the changing status of one of the area's oldest and most effective county health agencies was the theme of the last annual dinner of the Ulster County TB and Health Association which was held in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel, this week and attended by approximately 100 guests.

Ulster County agencies, organizations, institutions, Association program volunteers, directors and guests.

John M. Robbins, Saugerties banker and President of the Association, presided at the dinner and pointed out that as of April 1, 1969 the Ulster County TB and Health Association would become a part of a new three-county regional unit also including Greene and Sullivan Counties. He outlined the steps underway for this amalgamation, pointing up problems and concerns adding that "for the overall good statewide, there is a recognized need to merge large, strong TB-RD Agencies with the smaller units."

Program Exhibit

The adjoining Capitol Room was focal point for the extensive display and exhibit "Through the Years 1909-1969, containing portraits of key Ulster County TB workers and administrators, and of photographs, documents, a publication of records organized by subject areas to demonstrate the history and many program services of the TB-RD Association from its founding under Judge Joseph M. Fowler up to the present time.

Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr., Association president Emeritus reminisced about Ulster County TB-RD work and program workers concerned with the first effective steps to combat the high rate of tuberculosis amongst Ulster County people, and the role of the former TB Hospital, Dr. Edward F. Shea, long time Association director, briefly sketched verbal portraits of the late past Presidents Judge Joseph M. Fowler and Harry S. Ensign; and of late executive Directors, Dr. Mary Gage Day and Katherine M. Murphy each a leading community figure well known in their work for Ulster County people and the tuberculosis cause.

Nation Awards

Miss Katharine T. Terwilliger, Association vice-president, presented the National Certificate of Honor of the 1967 School Press Project to three Ulster County school papers which in competition on local, state and national level, had won the coveted national honor. The certificates were accepted by Robert Braun, student editor of Bennett Banner, Bennett

Seaway Workers Strike, 60 Ships Stranded

MONTREAL (UPI)—Twelve hundred St. Lawrence Seaway workers went on strike today stranding 60 ships in the vital passage way from the Atlantic Ocean to the industrial heartland of North America.

Members of the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway Transport and General Workers Union staged the walkout in a wage dispute with the government. The union originally asked for a 21 per cent pay hike and the government countered with an offer of a six per cent raise this year and another six per cent in 1969. The union since has lowered its demand to 18 per cent. Canadian seaway employees now average $3.10 an hour.

Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau, in the closing stages of a heated national election campaign, said the government offer was "fair and reasonable." He said it would not be raised.

A union spokesman said the government waited too long before they decided to speak. The government is represented in the dispute by the St. Lawrence Seaway Authority which runs the waterway.

Ship owners, fearful of a long walkout made desperate efforts to get their vessels out of the waterway before the strike deadline. The Seaway Authority left the gates of the waterway open at Montreal's St. Lambert locks and the Iroquois locks near Cornwall, Ont. to allow stranded ships to leave.

Teachers' Investment Club Desires Some Speculation

Q — Our investment club — all teachers and market novices — wants to build a speculative growth portfolio. We can take chances since we're using money we don't need currently. We'd like your comments on our first four selections. — B.A.

A — You're holding interesting situations, which should be retained for their full potential.

Lear Siegler, Wickes and Van Dusen Aircraft represent solid corporate growth. Earnings have moved up steadily and cash dividends are paid regularly. All are presently trading near their highest recorded levels.

Spacera is a young enterprise in an exotic industry — lasers and optic devices. No earnings have yet been reported, although increasing sales of lasers to government agencies, universities, hospitals and corporations supporting research and development programs are likely to produce some net income this year. I understand. Operations are sound enough to have enabled Spacera to secure sizable bank loans for new working capital and to market successfully in May 100,000 common shares at $19, compared with a $4 offering in February, 1966. This fourth holding of yours is an outright speculation showing considerable attraction for those who like to take chances. Watch carefully for an initial earnings report, and when it is released, give it your careful attention.

Q — I've learned the hard way that I should study a stock before buying it. I paid $4 for National Video — now 16 — when a friend was buying it. I knew nothing about this stock but have since checked it and realize now what happened to its business. I'd like your opinion on National Video. — E.S.

A — I regret sincerely your 50-ton South Korean ship which heavy loss from a one-time sank after striking a reef.

favorite that hit 120 in 1966. I see no immediate prospect of price recovery and for a switch I suggest you look into American Petrofina (ASE)—an integrated oil company with important petro-chemical interests. This speculative growth issue reflects rising earnings that are likely to continue. The cash dividend, recently increased, yields over 3 per cent.

Ike Gaining, Halt Bulletins

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors are so pleased with his "continuing progress" they have decided to stop issuing daily bulletins on his condition as he recuperates from his fifth heart attack. It was announced today.

He added: "The general's morale continues to be high and he is enjoying light reading." The spokesman said the reading matter consisted of paperback books.

Crew Rescued

Last Annual Dinner Of County TB Group

The past service and the changing status of one of the area's oldest and most effective county health agencies was the theme of the last annual dinner of the Ulster County TB and Health Association which was held in the Crystal Room of the Governor Clinton Hotel, this week and attended by approximately 100 guests. Ulster County agencies, organizations, institutions, Association program volunteers, directors and guests.

John M. Robbins, Saugerties banker and President of the Association, presided at the dinner and pointed out that as of April 1, 1969 the Ulster County TB and Health Association would become a part of a new three county regional unit also including Greene and Sullivan Counties. He outlined the steps underway for this amalgamation, pointing up problems and concerns adding that "for the overall good statewide, there is a recognized need to merge large, strong TB RD Agencies with the smaller units."

Program Exhibit

The adjoining Capitol Room was focal point for the extensive display and exhibit "Through the Years 1909-1969, containing portraits of key Ulster County TB workers and administrators, and of photographs, documents, publications and unusual volumes of records organized by subject areas to demonstrate the history and many program services of the TB RD Association from its founding under Judge Joseph M. Fowler up to the present time."

Dr. Frederic W. Holcomb Sr., Association past President, now Association president Emeritus reminisced about Ulster County TB RD work and program workers concerned with the first effective steps to combat the high rate of tuberculosis amongst Ulster County people, and the role of the former TB Hospital, Dr. Edward F. Shea, long time Association director, briefly sketched verbal portraits of the last past Presidents Judge Joseph M. Fowler and Harry S. Ensign, and of late executive Directors, Dr. Mary Gage Day and Katherine M. Murphy each a leading community figure well known in their work for Ulster County people and the tuberculosis cause.

Nation Awards

Miss Katharine T. Terwilliger, Association vice-president, presented the National Certificate of Honor of the 1967 School Press Project to three Ulster County school papers which in competition on local, state and national level, had won the coveted national honor. The certificates were accepted by Robert Braun, student editor of Bennett Banner, Bennett

Finally Makes It

ST. CATHARINES, Ont. (AP) — Six months and 15,000 miles later a car insurance payment enclosed in an envelope and mailed here made it to its destination seven miles from here.

Mrs. Lindsay Horne mailed her payment to Jordan Station, but abbreviated the "Station" part of the address. Post Office officials said a doubt was left in the clerk's mind so he sent it to Jordan in the Middle East.

Ships Held Up

MONTREAL (AP) — Foreign shippers held ocean-going vessels here today in anticipation of a strike threatened for Friday by workers throughout the St. Lawrence Seaway.

Spokesmen for shipping agencies said Monday they would not send upbound vessels into the seaway until the strike situation was clarified.

The walkout was called for 8 a.m. Friday by the Canadian Brotherhood of Railway, Transport and General Workers, which represents 1,200 seaway workers.

Blaze Near Mushroom Plant Is Extinguished

Firefighters of the Malden Camp Fire District battled a combustion blaze in a massive pile of straw near the Berzal mushroom plant in West Camp for some nine hours Thursday before the fire was extinguished.

The straw was located in a metal shed.

Under the direction of Fire Chief Robert Moon, the firemen responded to the scene at 3 p. m. and fought the blaze until 8 p. m. when it was believed the fire was out.

The blaze started up again, however, and the firefighters returned at 9 p. m. and battled the flames and smoldering straw until 1 a. m.

The fire broke out on an unnamed road between Malden and West Camp.

Desires Some Speculation

Q — Our investment club — all teachers and market novices — wants to build a speculative growth portfolio. We can take chances since we're using money we don't need currently. We'd like your comments on our first four selections. — B.A.

A — You're holding interesting situations, which should be retained for their full potential.

Lear Siegler, Wickes and Van Dusen Aircraft represent solid corporate growth. Earnings have moved up steadily and cash dividends are paid regularly. All are presently trading near their highest recorded levels.

Spacerays is a young enterprise in an exotic industry — lasers and optic devices. No earnings have yet been reported, although increasing sales of lasers to government agencies, universities, hospitals and corporations supporting research and development programs are likely to produce some net income this year, I understand. Operations are sound enough to have enabled Spacerays to secure sizable bank loans for new working capital and to market successfully in May 100,000 common shares at $19, compared with a $4 offering in February, 1966. This fourth holding of yours is an outright speculation showing considerable attraction for those who like to take chances. Watch carefully for an initial earnings report, and when it is released, give it your careful attention.

Q — I've learned the hard way that I should study a stock before buying it. I paid $4 for National Video — now 16 — when a friend was buying it. I knew nothing about this stock but have since checked it and realize now what happened to its business. I'd like your opinion on National Video. — E.S.

A — I regret sincerely your heavy loss from a one-time stock that hit 120 in 1966. I see no immediate prospect of price recovery and for a switch I suggest you look into American Petrofina (ASE)—an integrated oil company with important petro-chemical interests. This speculative growth issue reflects rising earnings that are likely to continue. The cash dividend, recently increased, yields over 3 per cent.

Ike Gaining, Halt Bulletins

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Former President Dwight D. Eisenhower's doctors are so pleased with his "continuing progress" they have decided to stop issuing daily bulletins on his condition as he recuperates from his fifth heart attack, it was announced today.

"There has been further decrease in the frequency of cardiac irregularities during the past 24 hours," a spokesman at Walter Reed Army Hospital said in a statement. He added: "The general's morale continues to be high and he is enjoying light reading." The spokesman said the reading matter consisted of paperback books.

Crew Rescued

Inspection of Buildings Helps Improve City Homes

Kingston's building inspector, George E. Radcliffe, today issued a news release on his department's goals in the current building inspection campaign that is underway.

In a release to The Freeman Radcliffe says, "This is a service to the property owner, to insure him that his home, or the unit he rents, is safe, as to extension cords, that gas and oil heating units are properly vented, have proper shut-off valves and safety valves. That stairs are safe to use and have proper hand rails, etc. The plumbing system is adequate to meet the plumbing code requirements and is in a safe and sanitary condition.

"It is not the purpose of this inspection to make any remarks or reports of any personal belongings or their uses, or the manner in which anyone keeps house. If violations are found to exist the property owner, after proper notification, will be given ample time to discuss and correct these violations. If the property owners request an extension of time, the reasons must be made known to this department.

"The Housing Code Commission requests your cooperation in this program, as it is designed to keep all parts of our city from deterioration, so that a large scale demolition program will not be necessary.

"For any further information please feel free to call the office of the building inspector any working day from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m."

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Of 1,124 color television sets surveyed in Washington, D.C., 66 measured higher radiation emissions than the safe standard, according to a report Monday at the 13th annual meeting of the Health Physics Society.

The survey by the National Center for Radiological Health showed that more than three-fourths of the sets had no measurable radiation outside the cabinet. The safe standard is set by the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements.

RECOGNITION IS KEY TO WEED-FREE LAWN

Ability to recognize various types of weeds in your lawn is the first step in obtaining what the experts call a good, turf-grass green lawn. Fortunately, you don't have to be a botanist to determine the types of weeds that infest your lawn. Here are tips to identify and control weeds from agronomists at Anchem Research Farm, Ambler, Pa.

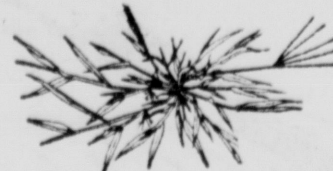

Is the weed a grass or is it broad-leaved? If it's a grass, is it an annual or a perennial, meaning one that lives for more than a year? If the weed is a perennial, does it creep and form large patches or does it clump and stay in one place?

If it grows in a clump, it is fairly easy to remove either with a shovel or with a weed-killing chemical. Once clump weeds are totally removed, they seldom reappear.

With creeping weeds, you must be careful to remove every single patch with a shovel or an appropriate chemical. Otherwise, any small section left in the ground will start a new infestation.

Some weeds are unable to tolerate constant mowing and they disappear in a year or so without any special treatment. However, the stubborn weeds, like crabgrass, wild onion, wild garlic, knotweed, plantain and ground ivy can stand up to the mower and require chemical treatment to destroy them.

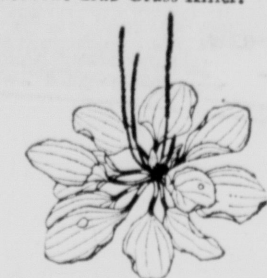

Following are illustrations of some weed pests and recommendations for their chemical control as suggested by horticulturalists at Anchem Research Farm. All of these require treatment with various types of Weedone weed control chemicals in spring or summer. For the exact Weedone formulation, you should ask the advice of your local nursery, garden center or hardware store. These illustrations will help you recognize and control weeds and aid you in producing a luxuriant lawn.

CRAB GRASS

Annual. Stems often red at base. Wide-bladed yellow-green seedlings. Branches out and roots at joints. Heavy mats of coarse crablike growth smother turfgrasses.

Prevent with Pre-emergence Crab Grass Killer. After emergence, use Weedone Crab Grass Killer.

WILD GARLIC

Perennial. Clumps of bulbs and secondary bulblets produce branches of slender hollow shoots in fall. Flowers in winter and disfigure spring lawns. Dies back in summer.

Control—apply Super D Weedone Lawn Weed Killer in spring yearly for 3 years.

BROAD-LEAVED PLANTAIN

Perennial. Large, coarse rounded leaves. Flower stalks are shorter than those of narrow-leaved plantain. Seeds heavily. Covers large areas of lawn.

Control—Super D Weedone Lawn Weed Killer. Harder to kill as season advances.

POISON IVY

Woody perennial. All parts are poisonous to touch. Varied leaf form (smooth, rounded or notched) and growth habit (climbing or trailing vine, or shrub). Always has alternately-placed leaves with 3 leaflets, clusters of waxy white berries.

Control — Weedone Poison Ivy Killer.

How to Avoid Roots in Pipe

If you're planning to buy a new home this summer, make sure that the underground pipes and drains are of a durable, watertight material. This advice comes from the Plumbing-Heating-Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that tree roots "instinctively" spread in the direction of nearby water. Once there's a leak or break in inferior piping, destructive roots will invade it and clog the line.

Cleaning out clogged lines can be a complex and expensive proposition, depending, of course, upon the extent of the damage, the location of the pipe, etc. The most effective method, which requires the knowledge and tools of a plumber, is cutting out the roots with a flexible auger that can be reeled into the lines. The contractor also has special root solvents that can be flushed through the lines to retard further growth.

Prevention is, of course, better than the cure. So if you're shopping for a new home, don't forget to ask about the pipe. Since it's something home buyers don't see, they often forget to do so.

New Paint Roller Makes Job Easier

By MR. FIX

The paint roller has undoubtedly done more for do-it-yourself home decorating than any other recent tool. Coupled with latex paints (though they are used with oil paints as well) they turn out a job that is easy and attractive.

The paint roller covers a wider area faster than an amateur could ever handle with the largest brush and there are no brush marks to worry about.

The tool consists of a fiber-covered roller and a handle. It's a simple tool and an inexpensive one. But, while a good paint roller is far less expensive than a good paintbrush, it doesn't mean that you can buy one for pennies.

Don't Get Cheap One

A cheap roller is a waste of the paint you use it with and the time used in putting it on.

Forget the disposable models. While it may be cheap enough to use once and throw it away, the results will be so poor you will regret using it.

Get a roller with a hollow core that fits onto a roller frame. The part of the frame that holds the roller is best if it is expandable. An expandable sleeve or wire cage will provide solid backing for the roller cover.

Pick a handle that will take an extension. This will allow you to paint a ceiling without climbing a ladder. The handle also should be comfortable in your hand.

Synthetics Best

The outer surface may be made of a variety of fibers. The synthetics are generally best; mohair not quite so good.

For most home painting you will use a short or medium nap cover. Generally the rougher the surface the longer the nap you should use. Short nap (1/4-inch) is for very smooth surfaces—previously painted surfaces, woodwork, wallboard. Medium nap (3/8-inch) is for anything already mentioned plus textured walls, stucco and concrete block. Long nap for cinder block and extra long for wire fencing.

The medium nap is best for all-round use and is preferable to the short nap because it will hold more paint. This means fewer painting per dip and therefore faster coverage.

The nap is glued to a cardboard surface. The better models have a core that is impregnated with materials to make it less porous. A few are even made of plastic.

Various Sizes

Rollers are also available in seven-inch and nine-inch widths. The nine-inch will obviously hold more paint and cover a wider surface but it will be slightly heavier to handle. For most people, however, the weight difference will be negligible, so pick the nine-inch model and get 25 per cent more coverage per dip.

A new roller may shed lint. Condition it before you start to paint with it. Dip it in the paint tray and cover it all over with paint. Then roll it back and forth on the ribbed portion of the tray to squeeze out the excess paint. Then roll it on large sheets of paper until it rolls dry. Do this a couple of times to get rid of the lint. Then start painting.

Carry as much paint on the roller as you can without dripping. Roll from a dry to a wet area to avoid lap marks. Keep speed and pressure moderate. Don't let the roller spin at the end of a stroke. That's what causes spattering.

If there are heavy lines at the edges or globs of paint that run down, roll them out while they are still wet. Let up on the pressure slightly at the end of a stroke. Finish by painting into a wet area and lift the roller from the work at that point.

Use a brush for trim and in corners. Avoid the odd-sized rollers and fancy gadgets that supposedly replace the brush.

Inspection of Buildings Helps Improve City Homes

Kingston's building inspector, George E. Radcliffe, today issued a news release on his department's goals in the current building inspection campaign that is underway.

In a release to The Freeman Radcliffe says, "This is a service to the property owner, to insure him that his home, or the unit or home he rents, is safe, as to danger from fire caused by use of extension cords, that gas and oil heating units are properly vented, have proper shut-off valves and safety valves. That stairs are safe to use and have proper hand rails, etc. The plumbing system is adequate to meet the plumbing code requirements and is in a safe and sanitary condition.

TV Radiation

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Of 1,124 color television sets surveyed in Washington, D.C., 66 measured higher radiation emissions than the safe standard, according to a report Monday at the 13th annual meeting of the Health Physics Society.

The survey by the National Center for Radiological Health showed that more than three-fourths of the sets had no measurable radiation outside the cabinet. The safe standard is set by the National Council on Radiation Protection and Measurements.

RECOGNITION IS KEY TO WEED-FREE LAWN

Ability to recognize various types of weeds in your lawn is the first step in obtaining what the experts call a good, turf-grass green lawn. Fortunately, you don't have to be a botanist to determine the types of weeds that infest your lawn. Here are tips to identify and control weeds from agronomists at Amchem Research Farm, Ambler, Pa.

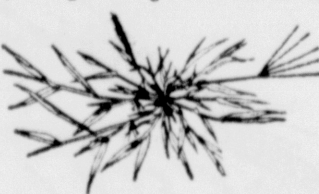

Is the weed a grass or is it broad-leaved? If it's a grass, is it an annual or a perennial, meaning one that lives for more than a year? If the weed is a perennial, does it creep and form large patches or does it clump and stay in one place?

If it grows in a clump, it is fairly easy to remove either with a shovel or with a weed-killing chemical. Once clump weeds are totally removed, they seldom reappear.

With creeping weeds, you must be careful to remove every single patch with a shovel or an appropriate chemical. Otherwise, any small section left in the ground will start a new infestation.

Some weeds are unable to tolerate constant mowing and they disappear in a year or so without any special treatment. However, the stubborn weeds, like crabgrass, wild onion, wild garlic, knotweed, plantain and ground ivy can stand up to the mower and require chemical treatment to destroy them.

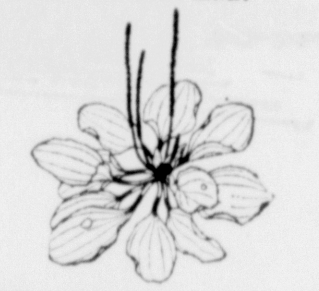

Following are illustrations of some weed pests and recommendations for their chemical control as suggested by horticulturalists at Amchem Research Farm. All of these require treatment with various types of Weedone weed control chemicals in spring or summer. For the exact Weedone formulation, you should ask the advice of your local nursery, garden center or hardware store. These illustrations will help you recognize and control weeds and aid you in producing a luxuriant lawn.

CRAB GRASS

Annual. Stems often red at base. Wide-bladed yellow-green seedlings. Branches out and roots at joints. Heavy mats of coarse crablike growth smother turfgrasses.

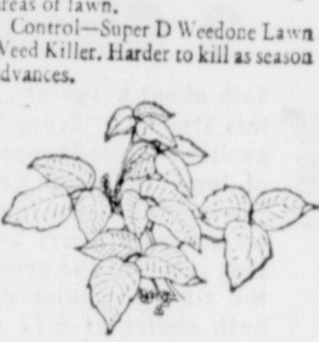

Prevent with Pre-emergence Crab Grass Killer. After emergence, use Weedone Crab Grass Killer.

WILD GARLIC

Perennial. Clumps of bulbs and secondary bulbils produce bunches of slender hollow shoots in fall. Flourishes in winter and disappears spring. Dies back in summer.

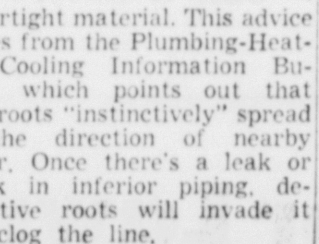

Control—apply Super D Weedone Lawn Weed Killer in spring yearly for 3 years.

BROAD-LEAVED PLANTAIN

Perennial. Large, coarse rounded leaves. Flower stalks are shorter than those of narrow-leaved plantain. Seeds heavily. Covers large areas of lawn.

Control—Super D Weedone Lawn Weed Killer. Harder to kill as season advances.

POISON IVY

Woody perennial. All parts are poisonous to touch. Varied leaf form (smooth, rounded or notched) and growth habit (climbing or trailing vine, or shrub). Always has alternately-placed leaves with 3 leaflets, clusters of waxy white berries.

Control — Weedone Poison Ivy Killer.

How to Avoid Roots in Pipe

If you're planning to buy a new home this summer, make sure that the underground pipes and drains are of a durable, watertight material. This advice comes from the Plumbing Heating - Cooling Information Bureau, which points out that tree roots "instinctively" spread in the direction of nearby water. Once there's a leak or break in inferior piping, destructive roots will invade it and clog the line.

Cleaning out clogged lines can be a complex and expensive proposition, depending, of course, upon the extent of the damage, the location of the pipe, etc. The most effective method, which requires the knowledge and tools of a plumbing contractor, is cutting out the roots with a flexible auger that can be reeled into the lines. The contractor also has special root solvents that can be flushed through the lines to retard further growth.

Prevention is, of course, better than the cure. So if you're shopping for a new home, don't forget to ask about the pipe. Since it's something home buyers don't see, they often forget to do so.

New Paint Roller Makes Job Easier

By MR. FIX

The paint roller has undoubtedly done more for do-it-yourself home decorating than any other recent tool. Coupled with latex paints (though they are used with oil paints as well) they turn out a job that is easy and attractive.

The paint roller covers a wider area faster than an amateur could ever handle with the largest brush and there are no brush marks to worry about.

The tool consists of a fiber-covered roller and a handle. It's a simple tool and an inexpensive one. But, while a good paint roller is far less expensive than a good paintbrush, it doesn't mean that you can buy one for pennies.

Don't Get Cheap One

A cheap roller is a waste of the paint you use it with and the time used in putting it on.

Forget the disposable models. While it may be cheap enough to use once and throw it away, the results will be so poor you will regret using it.

Get a roller with a hollow core that fits onto a roller frame. The part of the roller that holds the roller is best if it is expandable. An expandable sleeve or wire cage will provide solid backing for the roller cover.

Pick a handle that will take an extension. This will allow you to paint a ceiling without climbing a ladder. The handle also should be comfortable in your hand.

Synthetics Best

The outer surface may be made of a variety of fibers. The synthetics are generally best; mohair not quite so good.

For most home painting you will use a short or medium nap cover. Generally the rougher the surface the longer the nap you should use. Short nap (1/4-inch) is for very smooth surfaces—previously painted surfaces, woodwork, wallboard. Medium nap (3/8-inch) is for anything already mentioned plus textured walls, stucco and concrete block. Long nap for cinder block and extra long for wire fencing.

The medium nap is best for all-round use and is preferable to the short nap because it will hold more paint. This means fewer painting per dip and therefore faster coverage. The nap is glued to a cardboard surface. The better models have a core that is impregnated with materials to make it less porous. A few are even made of plastic.

Various Sizes

Rollers are also available in seven-inch and nine-inch widths. The nine-inch will obviously hold more paint and cover a wider surface but it will be slightly heavier to handle. For most people, however, the weight difference will be negligible, so pick the nine-inch model and get 25 per cent more coverage per dip.

A new roller may shed lint. Condition it before you start to paint with it. Dip it in the paint tray and cover it all over with paint. Then roll it back and forth on the ribbed portion of the tray to squeeze out the excess paint. Then roll it on large sheets of paper until it rolls dry. Do this a couple of times to get rid of the lint. Then start painting.

Carry as much paint on the roller as you can without dripping. Roll from a dry to a wet area to avoid lap marks. Keep speed and pressure moderate. Don't let the roller spin at the end of a stroke. That's what causes spattering.

If there are heavy lines at the edges or globs of paint that run down, roll them out while they are still wet. Let up on the pressure slightly at the end of a stroke. Finish by painting into a wet area and lift the roller from the work at that point.

Use a brush for trim and in corners. Avoid the odd-sized rollers and fancy gadgets that supposedly replace the brush.

The Green Thumb

By GEORGE ABRAHAM
How to Grow Petunias

Some gardeners can grow petunias and have them bloom riotously from spring till fall. Others have their petunias peter out in midsummer. Why the difference? The answer is in the care you give them. What's the best care? First, petunias like a uniform supply of water at all times. This doesn't mean you should water them every day. They aren't that fussy, but if you let them get bone dry, petunias get hard and leggy, and go to seed fast. This means fewer blooms on scrawny plants.

I'm often asked if you should snip off the seed pods from petunia plants. If the petunias are growing in a box or planter, I think it's a fine idea to snip off the faded blooms before they get a chance to form seed. Cut the seed pod off at the base of the flower. Do not simply remove the old bloom as this has no connection with the seed.

Some petunias hold their blossoms better in rain or damp weather. Usually the smaller blossomed types stand up better than the larger ones. Holes in leaves and blooms can be attributed to snail injury. They work at night. If plants are cut off close to the ground, blame this on rabbit injury.

Keep Evergreens Trimmed

Now's a good time to trim your evergreens. Let's start with the Canadian hemlock. This one can be sheared with grass clippers or hedge shears. Shear off the furry growth so that the tree will be nice and shapely. If the top is too tall, snip off the seed pods from petunia plants. If the petunias are growing in a box or planter, I think it's a fine idea to snip off the faded blooms before they get a chance to form seed. Cut the seed pod off at the base of the flower. Do not simply remove the old bloom as

Green Thumb Clinic
A reader writes: "Please tell me why my lawn looks like it had 'gray hair' after each mowing."

Answer: Sometimes if grass is allowed to get tall, and then mowed, you have some brown stubble. Also, if the blade is dull, a rotary or reel type mower will bruise the ends, leaving a brownish or grayish cast. Keep the blades sharp. your garage for quick reference. The guide has illustrations of weeds, insects, and tells how to grow good lawns, even in hot weather. Just send me your name and address for your free copy.

Lilac Troubles

If the twigs or leaves of your lilac bush suddenly turn black and dry up, it means trouble, probably phytophthora blight. Not much can be done to check it once an entire bush is affected but since lilacs sucker freely, there's a good possibility only part of the bush will be affected. You can cut out the diseased portions, way down to healthy tissue (never let your pruning shears cut into the diseased wood itself, as you only spread the infection). Burn all twigs cut off. Spraying the bushes with Bordeaux mixture will help in some cases. Another problem of lilacs is the San Jose scale. Spray with lime sulfur in spring before growth starts. Or you can spray with malathion now (earlier would have been better).

Pretty soon lilac leaves will take on a powdery coating, disfiguring the foliage. This is powdery mildew and it is not too damaging. Spraying with an antibiotic known as Acti-dione is helpful, or you can use a mildew killer known as Karathane, also called Mildex. If you won't have time to spray, ignore the disease and nothing too serious will happen to the lilac.

Asparagus Troubles

Many wondered what chewed the shoots of their asparagus this year. The villain: asparagus beetle. It not only chews the shoots but also lays brown eggs on them. A dusting of Sevin, or rotenone, is the proper treatment for the spears. You might want to dust the fern growth with rotenone or Sevin. If this is the second year of your asparagus, not more than two or three spears should be cut per plant. The third spring the spears can be cut for a short period of three weeks. After that, harvesting may continue through late June. After the tops have been killed by frost, they may be cut and added to the compost pile. If your neighbor happens to have a riding pony, see if you can get some rotted manure and apply it in fall at rate of three to four pounds per 100 square feet.

Bond Chairman Gives Views On New Rates

United States Savings Bonds and "Freedom Shares" are now a more attractive investment than ever before. William Edelmuth, city treasurer and chairman of the Ulster County Savings Bonds Committee, said today, in commenting on the increase in interest on Series E and H Bonds from 4.15 to 4.25 per cent and on Freedom Shares from 4.74 to 5 per cent, effective June 1. The present maturity periods of these securities remain unchanged, and the additional interest will be applied as a bonus at maturity. Edelmuth pointed out that the higher rates apply not only to newly purchased bonds but to all outstanding E and H Savings Bonds from June 1, 1968 until their next maturity date. Thus, present bond owners will be rewarded for investing in America and will not have to cash in their bonds to take advantage of the higher rates. "Now, more than ever," he said, "it is both practical and patriotic to buy and hold U.S. Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Martin Luther (1483-1546), the great German religious reformer, posted his "95 Theses," criticizing the abuse of the sale of indulgences, upon the door of the castle church at Wittenburg, Germany, Oct. 31, 1517, says The World Almanac. This act came to be considered the beginning of the Protestant Reformation, although Luther's original intentions were to purify the Church, not to establish a new one.

In this particular design the focus falls on the exterior with the semi-contemporary treatment giving a new expression to the rustic design. The very simplicity of the design does much to emphasize its many features. One of these is the extended gable roofs and V-joint vertical siding, with brick below at the living room area.

Two Bedrooms
The floor plan consists of two good-sized bedrooms with large wardrobes, tiled full bath, family type kitchen and good-sized living room. The feeling of home presented by the pretty exterior is not left at the front entrance. Instead, it is intensified by the efficient assignment of the work, living and sleeping areas.

Economical
This pretty dwelling, called "The Rustic," can be built at a very economic cost considering that the living area contains only 843 square feet, and the large two-car garage (which can be left unfinished, with a fire wall separating living and garage areas) adding 528 square feet to the overall structure.

Prints Available
Complete working blueprints are available at moderate cost by using the accompanying coupon. Additional sheets for this plan are available at minimum cost for FHA and VA construction loans.

Home Values To Stay High

Is this the right time to buy a house? Read this:

"Barring a major economic collapse, which appears highly unlikely, there won't be any price drops in new houses regardless of whether there is an increase or a decrease in the number of houses built this year. Land is worth more than it ever was. Construction costs are high and possibly going higher. Builders forced to pay premiums to arrange financing will have to pass the extra charge along to the purchasers in one way or another. Buyers want all the modern conveniences and are willing to pay more for them."

If you want a house and can afford it, the time to buy is now, but do you know when that analysis was made? We wrote that article on Feb. 18, 1967. Every word of it is still true—especially that part about buyers wanting all the modern conveniences and being willing to pay more for them.

There are so many factors that enter into the cost of a house that it would be impossible to generalize about prices. But experience has proved that everything else being equal, buyers will pay from $500 to $3,000 extra for a house which contains the features they want even when it brings the cost above what they originally intended to spend. This is a wise practice for families whose pocketbooks can stand it, because it always costs more to have improvements made at a later date than it does during the original construction.

An excellent example of the willingness of the public to pay for what it wants—rather than accept what is offered because it is cheaper—has occurred in the vacation or second-home market. Many builders presumed that a family wanted nothing but the bare necessities in a vacation home and therefore would not pay a good price for it. So they offered as little as possible and kept the prices very low. In some cases, in fact, they offered nothing more than a shell—and some companies still do.

It soon was discovered, however, that vacation or weekend houses which contained most of the comforts of year-round homes sold much faster than the skeleton-like structure, even though the prices were considerably higher. Most people while professing a desire to "rough it," actually are in search of comfort in their days and weeks away from their regular homes. To meet this need, more and more builders are turning out second homes with all kinds of luxury touches—and selling them faster than they sold shells.

Answers to 35 questions about housing and home repair are contained in Andy Lang's book, "Here's the Answer," which can be obtained by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to: Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

Shear off the furry growth so that the tree will be nice and shapely. If the top is too tall, you can clip it back a ways, but don't be too brutal! Be a barber, not a butcher, when you trim any evergreen. Japanese Yews (Taxus) both the spreading and upright types, can be sheared now. If you like them in formal, clipped way, this is fine. Trim the spreading type so it will grow into a ball. Upright types can be sheared into the shape of an inverted ice cream cone. Some feel these sheared specimens look highly artificial, but at least it's better than allowing the evergreens to grow into jungle.

Lilac Troubles

If the twigs or leaves of your lilac bush suddenly turn black and dry up, it means trouble, probably phytophthora blight. Not much can be done to check it once an entire bush is affected but since lilacs sucker freely, there's a good possibility only part of the bush will be affected. You can cut out the diseased portions, way down to healthy tissue (never let your pruning shears cut into the diseased wood itself, as you only spread the infection). Burn all twigs cut off. Spraying the bushes with bordeaux mixture will help in some cases. Another problem of lilacs is the San Jose scale. Spray with lime sulfur in spring before growth starts. Or you can spray with malathion now (earlier would have been better).

Pretty soon lilac leaves will take on a powdery coating, disfiguring the foliage. This is powdery mildew and it is not too damaging. Spraying with an antibiotic known as Actidione is helpful, or you can use a mildew killer known as Karathane, also called Miltex. If you won't have time to spray, ignore the disease and nothing too serious will happen to the lilac.

Asparagus Troubles

Many wondered what chewed the shoots of their asparagus this year. The villain: asparagus beetle. It not only chews the shoots but also lays brown eggs on them. A dusting of Sevin, or rotenone, is the proper treatment for the spears. You might want to dust the fern growth with rotenone or Sevin. If this is the second year of your asparagus, not more than two or three spears should be cut per plant. The third spring the spears can be cut for a short period of three weeks. After that, harvesting may continue through late June. After the tops have been killed by frost, they may be cut and added to the compost pile. If your neighbor happens to have a riding pony, see if you can get some rotted manure and apply it in fall at rate of three to four pounds per 100 square feet.

Bond Chairman Gives Views On New Rates

United States Savings Bonds and "Freedom Shares" are now a more attractive investment than ever before, William Edelmuth, city treasurer and chairman of the Ulster County Savings Bonds Committee, said today, in commenting on the increase in interest on Series E and H Bonds from 4.15 to 4.25 per cent and on Freedom Shares from 4.74 to 5 per cent, effective June 1. The present maturity periods of these securities remain unchanged, and the additional interest will be applied as a bonus at maturity. Edelmuth pointed out that the higher rates apply not only to newly purchased bonds but to all outstanding E and H Savings Bonds from June 1, 1968 until their next maturity date. Thus, present bond owners will be rewarded for investing in America and will not have to cash in their bonds to take advantage of the higher rates. "Now, more than ever," he said, "it is both practical and patriotic to buy and hold U.S. Savings Bonds and Freedom Shares."

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

Martin Luther (1483-1546), the great German religious reformer, posted his "95 Theses," criticizing the abuse of the sale of indulgences, upon the door of the castle church at Wittenburg, Germany, Oct. 31, 1517, says The World Almanac. This act came to be considered the beginning of the Protestant Reformation, although Luther's original intentions were to purify the Church, not to establish a new one.

In this particular design the focus falls on the exterior with the semi-contemporary treatment giving a new expression to the rustic design. The very simplicity of the design does much to emphasize its many features. One of these is the extended gable roofs and V-joint vertical siding, with brick below at the living room area.

Two Bedrooms
The floor plan consists of two good-sized bedrooms with large wardrobes, tiled full bath, family type kitchen and good-sized living room. The feeling of home presented by the pretty exterior is not left at the front entrance. Instead, it is intensified by the efficient assignment of the work, living and sleeping areas.

Economical
This pretty dwelling, called "The Rustic," can be built at a very economic cost considering that the living area contains only 843 square feet, and the large two-car garage (which can be left unfinished, with a fire wall separating living and garage areas) adding 528 square feet to the overall structure.

Home Values To Stay High

Is this the right time to buy a house? Read this:

"Barring a major economic collapse, which appears highly unlikely, there won't be any price drops in new houses regardless of whether there is an increase or a decrease in the number of houses built this year. Land is worth more than it ever was. Construction costs are high and possibly going higher. Builders forced to pay premiums to arrange financing will have to pass the extra charge along to the purchasers in one way or another. Buyers want all the modern conveniences and are willing to pay more for them."

If you want a house and can afford it, the time to buy is now, but do you know when that analysis was made? We wrote that article on Feb. 18, 1960! Every word of it is still true—especially that part about buyers wanting all the modern conveniences and being willing to pay more for them.

There are so many factors that enter into the cost of a house that it would be impossible to generalize about prices. But experience has proved that everything else being equal, buyers will pay from $500 to $3,000 extra for a house which contains the features they want, even when it brings the cost above what they originally intended to spend. This is a wise practice for families whose pocketbooks can stand it, because it always costs more to have improvements made at a later date than it does during the original construction. An excellent example of the willingness of the public to pay for what it wants—rather than accept what is offered because it is cheaper—has occurred in the vacation or second-home market. Many builders presumed that a family wanted nothing but the bare necessities in a vacation home and therefore would not pay a good price for it. So they offered as little as possible and kept the prices very low. In some cases, in fact, they offered nothing more than a shell—and some companies still do.

It soon was discovered, however, that vacation or weekend houses which contained most of the comforts of year-round homes sold much faster than the skeleton-like structure, even though the prices were considerably higher. Most people while professing a desire to "rough it," actually are in search of comfort in their days and weeks away from their regular homes. To meet this need, more and more builders are turning out second homes with all kinds of luxury touches—and selling them faster than they sold shells.

Answers to 35 questions about housing and home repair are contained in Andy Lang's booklet, "Here's the Answer," which can be obtained by sending 25 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know-How, P.O. Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743.

Disaster Almost Glorious

By JOHN T. WHEELER

DA NANG, Vietnam (AP) — A doomed Marine pilot, crumpled below his parachute deep in enemy territory, became unwitting bait for a huge Viet Cong ambush against helicopters.

Enemy troops pointedly ignored the flier, who lay with a broken leg and arm, trying to call in Air Force rescue helicopters. The Viet Cong were digging in all around the pilot, just out of sight and earshot, waiting.

Suspected Trap

When the camouflaged choppers arrived with their fighter-bombers escorts, they suspected a trap at once. They had seen many before. But traps are part of the business and pilots of the Jolly Green Giant rescue ships never questioned their next move—try and get their man out.

In the past year, the 37th Aerospace Recovery and Rescue Squadron has rescued more than 250 men from North and South Vietnam. The cost, three helicopters and eight killed of the 21 crews assigned to the squadron. Many of the saves were called miracles by the men who were picked up and those who did the job.

This time there was no miracle along the ridge line overlooking the A Shau Valley hard on the Laotian frontier. Unless it could be said, as some did later, that it was a wonder things weren't worse.

After fighter-bombers hit the area, the first camouflaged helicopter dipped its nose and sliced in for a rescue attempt. Withering groundfire greeted the chopper as it neared the Leatherneck pilot, and the craft shuddered under the impact of the bullets.

The pilot pulled up and fighter-bombers went back to work.

A second chopper slowed above the downed man but heavy fire raked the twin-engine craft. One of the spotter plane pilots called in, "Your left side is on fire, Jolly Green. Get outta there."

The pilot tried, pulling his stricken craft up and away from the trap and limping to the east. The fire diminished, but the bird's rotors began turning more and more slowly and the chopper fell. When it hit the ground, a huge fireball consumed the fragile craft. The four men aboard presumably were killed instantly.

Back at the Da Nang base the radioed news of the disaster first brought shock and then a mass of volunteers to go after their friends and the Marine jet pilot.

Capt. Jerry Griggs, Kannapolis, N.C., and his crew were next at the scene. He said: "After the Skyraiders worked over the area, we went in. When we started to hover over the Marine, it seemed the whole right side of the countryside erupted with groundfire. I could feel the hits on the aircraft."

Griggs' ship also caught fire but the copilot, Capt. Harry Hagen Jr., of Seattle, Wash., reported later: "Somehow we got away."

Far From Home Free

Away from the ridgeline trap, but far from home free.

The severely damaged helicopter tried to land some distance away "and the whole place blew up in our face. There were so many streams of tracers that it looked like 1,000 red pencils drawing lines in front of us," Hagen said.

With luck, a great deal of luck, this crew limped into the Marine base at Khe Sanh.

By now the Marine on the ground had stopped his radio transmission. With the odds against them, the rescue men might have assumed he was dead.

Maj. Harvie L. Stringer, Cookeville, Tenn., who escorted Griggs to Khe Sanh, returned and "figured most of the big guns were silenced and that it was worth another try."

Two skyraiders preceded Stringer's craft, two were on each side and two followed him into the pickup zone. Despite all the bombing and strafing runs, no one was too surprised when Sgt. Robert Baldwin, 26, Burkburnett, Tex., the flight engineer, shouted: "Pull up! pull up! They're shooting."

Baldwin and Sgt. Steve Northern, 21, Riverside, Calif., began pouring machine-gun fire into the Viet Cong positions, killing some of the enemy and forcing the rest to keep their heads down.

Northern, the pararescue medic, was at the helicopter's door waiting to go down via a cable hoist to pick up the downed pilot. Then "the whole hill opened up on us," he recalls.

One of the covering fighter bombers radioed, "Get away from the ridge, Jolly. Get away from the ridge, Charlie is all over the place."

Ominously the center of the fire was only 20 yards from the downed pilot.

One Last Try

Maj. Stringer reported that the downed Marine was crumpled up and not moving, but it was decided to try one last time.

The results were about the same. Heavy fire, the rescue chopper hit several times before being forced to abandon the effort.

The total cost of the operation was four Jolly Green men presumed killed, one chopper destroyed, one heavily damaged and two moderately damaged.

Guru Tunic Displayed

By JEAN SPRAIN WILSON
AP Fashion Editor

NEW YORK (AP) — With their men in Nehru and with gurus pondering over their medallions women have had to come to the Indian thing too.

Larry Aldrich and his designer Marie McCarthy are offering a princely bit of mysticism opulent enough to awe a rajah and expensive enough to make him an ex-rajah.

"These are very wearable, if you can afford them," Aldrich said at the opening of New York Couture Groups weeklong preview of fall collections.

The Aldrich style Nehru fits into everybody's theme song for restful simplicity. The princess lines of rajah coats and Nehru or guru tunics give with the currently revived idea of showing the body the way it is and not as some designer would have it.

In sheer dark stockings and brown pumps, the models appeared in quiet-hued daytime dresses with Asian banded collars, some with girdled midriffs and swinging skirts and nearly all with yards and yards of chain dangling at their neck.

For evening wear the styles were simply the same, but opulently executed in gold brocades or dazzling jewels: or outlined on chiffon, or velvet, with bands of gold braid or jewels.

Just as establishment has given status to Indian mysticism recently popularized by the hippies, it has also glitterized and glamorized the hippie vest. The Aldrich version, blazing with jewels, slipped over a simple white satin dress with a guru neckline, of course.

Service Planned

The jointly sponsored Odd Fellows and Rebekah's annual memorial service will be held in the IOOF Lodge rooms of Olivebridge Hall Saturday at 8 p.m.

An appropriate program is being arranged with a public attendance invited. After the program refreshments will be served.

In connection with the regular meeting of Olive Rebekah Lodge held June 13, the 38th anniversary was observed. It was announced that the group is making arrangements for a rummage sale in July. Donations of articles will be appreciated and pick ups will be made. Donations may be left at the Olivebridge garage.

AND OTHER STORIES

by JANE TYSON CLEMENT

BEAUTIFULLY ILLUSTRATED IN STRIKING COLOR

by KATHY MOW

Here is a mother who writes for all children the kind of stories she wished she could have found for her own. Jane Clement has provided tales that renew and refresh, that quietly remind us that love, purity and self-sacrifice are still precious. A whimsical fairy tale, a legend and a richly historical piece are among the forms used. Of a previously published Christmas story by Mrs. Clement entitled "The Three Gifts" which appeared in a new collection of Christmas stories, BEHOLD THAT STAR, Ruth Hill Viguers, then Editor of THE HORN BOOK wrote:
"Among several stories of real distinction are

Hints from Heloise

I gave my Mom a gift on her birthday that she liked so well she said it was the nicest gift she had ever received.

It was a "coupon book" of things I could do for her. Whenever she wants me to do one of them, she just tears out that page and gives it to me.

Some of the things I wrote were:

I'll help with supper; I'll empty the trash; I'll sweep the front porch and steps; I'll read a book instead of watching TV; I'll spray wax the furniture; I'll clean my room; I'll do anything you tell me to...

There were 10 things in all. I got the idea from my school teacher and have liked doing all of these things because it makes my Mom happy.

Of course, I also do other things when she asks me. And since she liked this idea so much, I've decided to make another coupon book for next Mother's Day as well as on every birthday.

Randy, Age 7

Randy, I think this is the sweetest idea I ever heard of. Yours is a lucky Mom and I'm sure she appreciates your gift much more because you thought of it yourself.

Wouldn't all of you Moms love to get a birthday present just like this? I sure would! Doesn't cost a penny out of either your pocket or your child's piggy bank. And what a joy to have this help offered without coaxing.

A big hug and squeeze to you, Randy, from the rest of us mothers.

Heloise

Dear Heloise: Please help me so I won't break a leg.

There are two steps in our stairs that make a loud squeak every time we go up or down stairs. I've even been taking two steps at a time to avoid the squeaky ones. I'm careful, but it probably will be my luck to fall someday.

Is there an easy way to stop those squeaks without going to the trouble and expense of replacing the boards?

Mrs. B.

Dear Heloise: I have always had trouble with elastic loop buttonholes when I tried to replace them. (They usually pull away from the stitches.)

I've found a way to remedy this, though.

I fold a piece of seam tape with the ends of the elastic inside and stitch it several times. Next, I open the dress or coat seam just enough to get the tape inside the garment, then close the seam.

The elastic loop is in there to stay. No more pulling out.

Boys State To Have 13 From Ulster

Thirteen Ulster County boys have been selected to attend the 1968 annual Boys State Convention, to be held this year at the State University of New York Agricultural and Technical College in Morrisville from June 23 through June 29.

bers of each of the Ulster County Legion Posts, in addition to parents, principals, and guidance counselors. The boys were acquainted with the purposes of Boys State Convention and were informed of the activities.

Abernathy Cancels

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy, head of the South Christian Leadership Conference, canceled a speech Sunday at a Poor People's Campaign rally in the city's predominantly Negro Hill district.

The Rev. Andrew Young, SCLC vice president who appeared instead, said Abernathy stayed in Washington because the SCLC staff decided not to send two of its leaders to the same place at the same time.

Abernathy and Young were originally scheduled to speak.

The FBI said in Pittsburgh Saturday that it had learned that threats had been made against Abernathy's life.

The Rev. Andrew Young, SCLC vice president who appeared instead, said Abernathy stayed in Washington because the SCLC staff decided not to send two of its leaders to the same place at the same time.

Health Dept. Denies Story Fallout Aids Leukemia

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York State Health Department says there is no evidence to support a Pittsburgh professor's report that radio-active fallout over the Albany-Troy, N.Y., area in 1953 had increased the incidence of childhood leukemia.

Dr. Granville Larimore, first deputy commissioner of the department, told a reporter Thursday there was a fallout in the area at that time but said it was "not enough to produce serious effects."

Prof. E.J. Sternglass of the University of Pittsburgh's Department of Radiology presented a report in Denver, Colo., in which he said a 1953 rainstorm carried fallout to this area from an April nuclear test in Nevada.

The result, Sternglass said, was a doubling of childhood leukemia over an eight-year period.

The professor, contacted in Detroit Thursday night, said that, to the best of his knowledge, the New York agency had not seen a copy of his report.

Larimore asserted that Sternglass had consulted the department earlier and had been told the department's opinion.

State law requires that leukemia cases, along with other cancer, be reported to the department, Larimore said. There was no evidence to support the professor's theory, he added.

Sternglass said Thursday night he knew New York officials did not believe that his data "showed there was a causal connection between an increase in leukemia and the arrival of the fallout."

He said, however, that fellow scientists "felt my data were quite conclusive."

Sternglass claimed in the report that those affected included children in wombs and children born as long as 10 years later.

He stated there were 20 cases of leukemia in the 1-10 age group during the eight years before the fallout, and 42 cases in the same group during the eight years after 1953. While the incidence more than doubled, the population of the region increased about 10 per cent.

Health Dept. Denies Story Fallout Aids Leukemia

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — The New York State Health Department says there is no evidence to support a Pittsburgh professor's report that radio-active fallout over the Albany-Troy, N. Y., area in 1953 had increased the incidence of childhood leukemia.

Dr. Granville Larimore, first deputy commissioner of the department, told a reporter Thursday there was a fallout in the area at that time but said it was "not enough to produce serious effects."

Prof. E.J. Sternglass of the University of Pittsburgh's Department of Radiology presented a report in Denver, Colo., in which he said a 1953 rainstorm carried fallout to this area from an April nuclear test in Nevada.

The result, Sternglass said, was a doubling of childhood leukemia over an eight-year period.

The professor, contacted in Detroit Thursday night, said that, to the best of his knowledge, the New York agency had not seen a copy of his report.

Larimore asserted that Sternglass had consulted the department earlier and had been told the department's opinion.

State law requires that leukemia cases, along with other cancer, be reported to the department, Larimore said. There was no evidence to support the professor's theory, he added.

Sternglass said Thursday night he knew New York officials did not believe that his data "showed there was a causal connection between an increase in leukemia and the arrival of the fallout."

He said, however, that fellow scientists "felt my data were quite conclusive."

Sternglass claimed in the report that those affected included children in wombs and children born as long as 10 years later.

He stated there were 20 cases of leukemia in the 1-to-10 age group during the eight years before the fallout, and 42 cases in the same group during the eight years after 1953. While the incidence more than doubled, the population of the region increased about 10 per cent.

Red China Wants Seat At Paris Talks Table

PARIS (UPI)—If the United States and North Vietnam ever get their preliminary war talks to the stage of a full dress peace conference they will find Red China seated at the table, Communist diplomats said today.

They said Peking's grumbles of disapproval over the preliminary talks would not keep them from insisting on a place at an international conference to find a solution to the Vietnam war.

Western diplomatic sources agreed. They said a broader conference, with Red China's participation, would have to be called before a lasting peace can be found.

Peking has made no overt effort to force North Vietnam out of the Paris talks. But to show its displeasure the entire staff of the New China news agency's Paris office was ordered home at the start of the talks.

The 35-man Hanoi delegation has limited its official contact with the Red Chinese diplomats in Paris to a single protocol meeting. To avoid trouble with its other powerful ally and arms supplier, the North Vietnamese also held such a meeting with the Soviet diplomats. There was only one meeting with each to keep the record even between the feuding Communist powers.

The purpose of the talks between Washington and Hanoi is to reduce the fighting enough to permit a start on a full scale international peace conference. Progress has been slight. North Vietnam has consistently demanded that the United States stop all bombing of the north and "all other hostile acts" against it before any peace negotiations can start.

Clifford - McNamara Differ On Project

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford has revealed for the first time a significant difference in views from his predecessor, Robert S. McNamara.

The dispute came to light Tuesday when Clifford told a news conference that the United States should push ahead with development of the Sentinel antimissile system, something opposed by McNamara when he was secretary of defense.

The $5 billion Sentinel program, the so-called "thin missile" system, is designed to protect the United States from the relatively small-scale Red Chinese nuclear attack, thought possible by the mid 1970s.

"I believe we should have a defense against the Chinese system other than just a massive retaliatory attack," Clifford said in opposing current moves in Congress to cut funds for the Sentinel program.

Different Position
McNamara's position was that the United States should concentrate on building the strength of its offensive missile program to the point where neither China nor the Soviet Union would dare attack.

He argued that there were only "marginal grounds" for concluding that a relatively light antimissile system would be effective.

When McNamara finally gave his authorization to the program last September it was with evident lack of enthusiasm.

and after President Johnson reportedly forced the issue.

There are grounds to believe that Clifford, then as now a close advisor to Johnson, threw decisive weight with the President in behalf of the go ahead.

However, Clifford, who succeeded McNamara March 1, appeared to agree with the former secretary in his opposition to a more complex and heavier anti-missile system designed to protect against Soviet attack.

McNamara had said such a system would cost up to $40 billion and still would be relatively ineffective in saving American lives.

Clifford said Thursday that "I am informed by our experts that there is no known defense from the Soviet Union."

But he departed from McNamara in another respect: that U.S. installation of an antimissile system might trigger another round in the nuclear arms race.

Must Act Reasonably

He said he hoped the Russians had realized "the time has come for us both to... act reasonably" and agree on nuclear arms limitation.

But, Clifford said, the United States cannot let the Soviet Union think it is stronger than America.

"If the Russians develop, as they are now deploying around Moscow, an effective ABM system, and we do not deploy an ABM system, I believe that could very well place them in the position where they could misconstrue the relative strength of the two countries."

At another point, Clifford said that proceeding with deployment of the Sentinel, "places us in a better posture negotiating with them and, hopefully, reaching a broader arms agreement."

Top Performance Given

BY DOROTHY NAREL

It was fun, entertainment and champagne bubbles at the Woodstock Playhouse Saturday night (June 15).

When Edgar Rosenblum, executive director of the summer playhouse, now in its 31st season, unveiled the first production of the '68 season, it was Neil Simon's "The Star Spangled Girl," a comedy with built-in foolproof lines, a contemporary theme and fast action.

Margaret Cathell ("The Star Spangled Girl") carried the successful Broadway hit to a climatic finish. Armed with a wild southern accent, Miss Cathell was exceptionally good as the former Olympic swimmer who stood for "the flag, motherhood and against sin." Representing the anti-America forces were magazine publishers typically "Neil Simon" and Gary Campbell and Gene Nye. Both must be lauded for their outstanding performances with additional Park. The scenery by Harry Moss is excellent and Clyde Hellitt, lighting technician, directed by Harold G. Bald-deserves a bow.

There is little doubt in my mind that what made Saturday night's first play so enjoyable was the comfortable seat in which I sat. The Woodstock Playhouse has taken on a different look with its red velvet-like chairs.

Someone did make the remark, however, "... Gee, it doesn't look like a barn any more." The Woodstock Playhouse will keep "Star Spangled Girl" on stage through June 23.

On June 26, Rosenblum will usher in "The Lion in Winter."

Other top summer productions will include "The Odd Couple," "The Homecoming," "The Apple Tree," "The Odd and Dells," "Guys and Dolls," and "Barefoot in the Park." Curtain is at 8:40.

Red China Wants Seat At Paris Talks Table

PARIS (UPI)—If the United States and North Vietnam ever get their preliminary war talks to the stage of a full dress peace conference they will find Red China seated at the table, Communist diplomats said today.

They said Peking's grumbles of disapproval over the preliminary talks would not keep them from insisting on a place at an international conference to find a solution to the Vietnam war.

Western diplomatic sources agreed. They said a broader conference, with Red China's participation, would have to be called before a lasting peace can be found.

Peking has made no overt effort to force North Vietnam out of the Paris talks. But to show its displeasure the entire staff of the New China news agency's Paris office was ordered home at the start of the talks.

The 35-man Hanoi delegation has limited its official contact with the Red Chinese diplomats in Paris to a single protocol meeting. To avoid trouble with its other powerful ally and arms supplier, the North Vietnamese also held such a meeting with the Soviet diplomats. There was only one meeting with each to keep the record even between the feuding Communist powers.

The purpose of the talks between Washington and Hanoi is to reduce the fighting enough to permit a start on a full scale international peace conference. Progress has been slight.

North Vietnam has consistently demanded that the United States stop all bombing of the north and "all other hostile acts" against it before any peace negotiations can start.

Clifford - McNamara Differ On Project

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Clark M. Clifford has revealed for the first time a significant difference in views from his predecessor, Robert S. McNamara.

The dispute came to light Tuesday when Clifford told a news conference that the United States should push ahead with development of the Sentinel antimissile system, something opposed by McNamara when he was secretary of defense.

The $5 billion Sentinel program, the so-called "thin missile" system, is designed to protect the United States from the relatively small-scale Red Chinese nuclear attack, thought possible by the mid-1970s.

"I believe we should have a defense against the Chinese system other than just a massive retaliatory attack," Clifford said in opposing current moves in Congress to cut funds for the Sentinel program.

McNamara's position was that the United States should concentrate on building the strength of its offensive missile program to the point where neither China nor the Soviet Union would dare attack.

He argued that there were only "marginal grounds" for concluding that a relatively light antimissile system would be effective.

When McNamara finally gave his authorization to the program last September it was with evident lack of enthusiasm.

and after President Johnson reportedly forced the issue.

There are grounds to believe that Clifford, then as now a close advisor to Johnson, threw decisive weight with the President in behalf of the go-ahead.

However, Clifford, who succeeded McNamara March 1, appeared to agree with the former secretary in his opposition to a more complex and heavier antimissile system designed to protect against Soviet attack.

McNamara had said such a system would cost up to $40 billion and still would be relatively ineffective in saving American lives.

Clifford said Thursday that "I am informed by our experts that there is no known defense at this time to a massive attack from the Soviet Union."

But he departed from McNamara in another respect: that U.S. installation of an antimissile system might trigger another round in the nuclear arms race.

Must Act Reasonably
He said he hoped the Russians had realized "the time has come for us both to . . . act reasonably" and agree on nuclear arms limitation.

But, Clifford said, the United States cannot let the Soviet Union think it is stronger than America.

"If the Russians develop, as they are now developing around Moscow, an effective ABM system, and we do not deploy an ABM system, I believe that could very well place them in the position where they could misconstrue the relative strength of the two countries."

At another point, Clifford said that proceeding with deployment of the Sentinel, "places us in a better posture negotiating with them and, hopefully, reaching a broader arms agreement."

It was fun, entertainment and champagne bubbles at the Woodstock Playhouse Saturday night (June 15) when Edgar Rosenblum, executive director of the summer playhouse, now in its 31st season, unveiled the first production of the '68 season. It was Neil Simon's "The Star Spangled Girl," a comedy with built-in fool-proof lines, a contemporary theme and fast action.

Margaret Cathell (The Star Spangled Girl) carried the successful Broadway hit to a climatic finish. Armed with a wild southern accent, Miss Cathell was exceptionally good as the former Olympic swimmer who stood for "the flag, motherhood and against sin." Representing the anti-America forces were magazine publishers Gary Campbell and Gene Nye. Both must be lauded for their outstanding performance with additional the Park.

Donnie Van's Edge Merchants, 4-3, on Disputed Play

THERE'S STILL HOPE for Tony Conigliaro (L) shown with his father after visiting an eye specialist in Boston yesterday. The specialist told Conigliaro that the eye condition that has prevented him from playing with the Boston Red Sox this season has stabilized. Conigliaro has the doctor's permission to resume baseball practice whenever he wishes. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Donnie Van edged Kingston to score the tie-breaking run in a hotly disputed play at City Baseball field. League action last night at The game was interrupted for several minutes while a rhubarb occurred in the hot argument around the sixth inning, when Fred Secore home plate, but in the end the home umpire prevailed and the run proved to be the difference between the two teams.

Two KHS Pitchers
Two Kingston High school pitchers—Charlie Jones and Pete Helmich—locked in a 3-hit duel, with Helmich getting the nod. He struck out 11 and Jones whiffed 14.

Merchants collected two unearned runs off Jones in the first inning. Leadoff Mike Gorman was safe on an error and came all the way home on wild pitches. Jack Watzka then tripled and scored on an error to put the Merchants ahead, 2-0.

Wagner Finally Raps Home Run

By MIKE BRYSON

Associated Press Sports Writer
Cleveland waited hopelessly for a couple of months for Leon Wagner to hit a homer before dealing him off to Chicago for Russ Snyder a week ago.

The Indians didn't wait long enough. Wagner's first round-tripper of the season Wednesday night ignited a six-run uprising that boosted the White Sox from behind and to an 8-4 conquest of his old mates.

Meanwhile, Denny McLain used a long-dormant pitch to baffie Boston with a dandy three-hitter and Mickey Stanley drove in four runs in propelling Detroit to a 5-1 victory and an 8½ game lead in the American League—the Tigers' biggest margin this season.

All other American League teams were idle. "Man, that was a good feeling, having my first big day of the season, and it was the first installment on my White Sox pay check," said Wagner of the two-run shot into the right field stands.

It was the 211th of his major league career, but his first since late last summer.

A run-scoring single by Tommy Davis, Ken Berry's RBI double and a two-run double by pitcher Tommy John, who chalked up his sixth straight without a loss, capped the outburst that shoved the Indians from second to fourth place in the torrid battle for the runner-up spot.

Baltimore, Minnesota and Cleveland—all 8½ games out—are separated by only two percentage points.

McLain's first American Leagueur to win 12 games this season, relied on a "sidearm fastball" he hasn't used for years to tame the Red Sox for 6 2/3 innings before George Scott and Elston Howard came up with consecutive singles.

The 5-foot-11, 185-pounder, who has lost only twice, said he stopped using the pitch three seasons ago after a pulled bicep muscle in his right arm bothered him when he threw it.

"It's no miracle pitch," said McLain, "but these guys haven't seen it for three years."

Short Saves Seaver In Mets 5-3 Victory

NEW YORK (UPI)—Cleon Seaver saved four runs with a sacrifice fly and a homer and Billy Short retired Rusty Staub with the bases loaded for the final out to give the New York Mets a 5-3 victory over the Houston Astros Thursday.

Met starter Tom Seaver struck out a career high of 12 batters and was sailing along with a four hitter when Houston erupted for two runs in the ninth on singles by Bob Watson, Hector Torres, and Bob Aspromonte and had the bases loaded with two outs.

But Short, a lefthanded relief specialist, preserved Seaver's fifth victory by retiring Staub, on a bouncer to the mound.

Larry Dierker, victimized by some poor fielding behind him, became the major league's first 10 game loser. He has won six games.

Seaver scored the first Met run when he led off the third inning by beating out a slow roller to Dierker. He took second on an error by second baseman Denis Menke, who dropped the ball while tagging Seaver on a sacrifice attempt.

Seaver touched off the winning three-run rally in the fifth when his high fly was lost in the sun by center fielder Dick Simpson for a double. Two out Ken Boswell walked and Jones hit his seventh homer of the year.

Jones now has hit safely in 13 of the last 14 games to raise his batting average from .223 to .263.

Art Shamsky gave New York its final run with his fourth homer in the sixth inning.

Still and Devlin Share Lead at 67

TORONTO (UPI)—Ken Still, looking for his first victory on the PGA tour, three-putted the final hole but still managed to tie Australian Bruce Devlin for the first round lead in the three-under-par 67.

Tied for third with 69s were defending champion Billy Casper of Bonita, Calif., Tom Weiskopf of Bedford, Ohio, Lou Graham of Nashville, Tenn., R. H. Sikes of Springdale, Ark., Orville Moody of Killen, Tex., and Moe Norman of Gifford, Ont.

Casper, leading money winner on the tour this year and winner of four tournaments, birdied the last of the first two holes then settled into a string of pars before bogeying the 12th hole.

Still, the 32-year-old happy-go-lucky shotmaker from Tacoma, Wash., was moving along at five under par before he bogeyed the 16th and 18th holes over the wind-swept St. George's course.

On the 16th, he two-putted from nine feet and on the 18th he put his second shot 10 feet from the pin but three-putted for his bogey.

Still dropped an eight-footer for an eagle three on the 517-yard 11th hole. "I hit a big tee shot and straight iron," he said.

Wild Pitches Hurt Merchants Collected Two Unearned Runs

Wild pitches and errors also figured in Donnie Van's three-run counter rally in the first inning.

Nick Berardi was safe on an error and scored on Tim Bowens' double. A passed ball sent Bowens home and Fred Secore, who started the sixth inning commotion, walked and eventually scored the go-ahead run on a wild pitch.

Merchants tied 3-3 in the second, as Mike Gorman reached first base on a strikeout when the catcher dropped the third strike and scored on Skip Lyons' single.

Closing Rallies Spell Victory In Saugerties

A four-run rally in the sixth inning gave Ferroxcube a comeback from behind, 4-1 victory over winless Paul's Shell in the Yankee Division and Scarsell's rapped 12 runs in its fifth-frame rally, bombing Helmsmoortel's 15-6, in the Net Division of the Saugerties Softball League last night.

Trailing 1-0 heading into the sixth, Ferroxcube finally solved losing hurler, Pete Zeeh, and worked him for a bases-loaded walk, a two-run single by George Purnan and a fielding error to score the victory.

Paul's got its lone run in the fourth on the two hits winner Jack Hillie allowed. It evened Hillie's record at 2-2 and upped Ferroxcube's to 2-3. Paul's has lost all five encounters.

Roger Lindhurst stroked a double and a pair of singles in a perfect 3-for-3 night to pace Scarsell's. Gus Sando and Bob Raucei each had a pair of safeties.

Scarsell's, also 2-3, erupted for those dozen runs in the fifth, breaking it open after trailing by as much as 6-0, going into the bottom of the second. Seven hits, eight errors, a trio of walks and five wild pitches allowed Scarsell's to march 15 batters to the plate in the wild fifth.

Day of Wine and Roses For Gibson and Pappas

By JOE GERGEN

UPI Sports Writer

Blazing Bob Gibson extended the Chicago Cubs' scoring drought to record proportions while a parched Milt Pappas was bathed in a quenching shower of applause.

Gibson, the newest shutout king in the National League, completed his fourth successive whitewash job Thursday in pitching the St. Louis Cardinals to a 1-0 triumph over Chicago. He thus pushed the Cubs' string of scoreless innings to 46, a National League record for futility.

Gibson, who won his fifth consecutive game, has not yielded a run in 35 innings and his fourth straight shutouts are two shy of Don Drysdale's major league mark. The Cubs, who have failed to score since last Saturday, a streak encompassing five games, are only two innings shy of the major league scoreless mark set by the 1906 Philadelphia Athletics.

Pappas, the sensitive right-hander traded from Cincinnati to the Atlanta Braves following a dispute with the Reds' management, recorded his first victory in nearly two months, a 3-1 decision against his former teammates which kept the Braves 1-2 games behind the league-leading Cards.

Although he was limited to 5 2/3 innings by a pulled muscle in his thigh, Pappas was given a standing ovation as he left the field. Cecil Upshaw preserved Pappas' first victory since April 27.

In other games, the Philadelphia Phillies edged the San Francisco Giants 2-1, the New York Mets beat the Houston Astros 5-3 and the Los Angeles Dodgers squeezed out a 3-2, 10-inning victory which snapped Pittsburgh's nine-game winning streak after the Pirates had won the two-night doubleheader opener 7-3.

"I like those shutouts," said Gibson, who boosted his record to 8-5. "They're neat and sanitary. It's hard to believe that Cubs' record, especially with hitters like Billy Williams and Ron Santo."

The Cubs, whose scoreless syndrome first became noticeable at Atlanta, fell behind in the third inning on a triple by Lou Brock and a single by Curt Flood and never recovered despite a fine four-hit performance by Ferguson Jenkins.

"I turned around to see if it was meant for someone else," said Pappas in reference to the standing ovation accorded him by the crowd of 13,259 at Atlanta Stadium. "It really gave me shivers. It's the nicest thing that's happened to me since Baltimore."

Pappas, who yielded seven hits and a second-inning run, was originally acquired by the Reds from the Orioles in the Frank Robinson deal. His two unhappy years in Cincinnati were climaxed by a squabble with the team management over curtailment of play following the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Joe Torre hit his seventh home run to produce Atlanta's first run and Pappas singled and scored a run during the Braves' two-run fifth which saddled Gary Noland with his second loss.

Rick Wise scattered six hits as the Phillies turned back the Giants with the help of Ray Sadecki's wild pitch in the first inning. The errant toss allowed Cookie Rojas to score the first Philadelphia run and the deciding tally scored on Tony Taylor's single.

PARIS (AP)—The U.S. women's golf team dropped behind a selection of European continent's best 5½-3½ Wednesday in the first of a two-day competition.

Cardigan Bay's Quest: "First Million Dollar Baby"

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Tomorrow is a very big day in the life of Cardigan Bay, harness racing's money-winning standardbred horse.

Cardigan Bay, who stands just $15,000 short of becoming the sport's first competitor to earn $1 million, returns to the scene of one of his most memorable races, continuing his quest for that "supposedly unreachable" title of "Millionaire."

Tomorrow afternoon, CB, as trainer driver and co-owner Stanley Dancer lovingly calls the New Zealand imported gelding, has an excellent chance to cut that $15,000 deficit in half. He is entered in the afternoon's feature race, the Catskill Pace at Monticello Raceway.

The Mighty M, which normally cards four double-headers a year, scheduled an additional day-night program tomorrow

(the regular four are later) on a somewhat short-notice basis to make up for the day MR was closed in memoriam to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Special Attraction Wanted
Monticello Raceway prexy Leon Greenberg wanted a special attraction for this extra added afternoon, so he moved the Catskill ahead from the evening's program to the afternoon stanza.

Greenberg went all out in an effort to get CB, a darling of the fans, and sure enough, Greenberg landed the 12-year-old gelding.

CB captured the hearts of Monticello regulars two years ago with a "sheer guts" attempt, in the rain, at the Sullivan County oval's pacing standard.

Rated as one of the gamiest pacers ever to campaign in front of the sulky, CB staged a show for the hardy patrons that braved the driving rain.

The night was May 28, 1966, and CB's boss, Dancer, said "We're here, the public's here and although we don't stand a chance of even getting close to the record, we're going to give them what they came to see."

So out went Dancer and Cardigan, periling almost unbelievable and surely impossible circumstances to give the fans at least an attempt, though utterly futile, at the track's record for pacers.

Using a prompter in the time trial, CB went the first quarter in 0:30.3 and the half in an almost unbelievable 1:00.4. All of a sudden, eyes began to blink. The crowd, 9,554 strong, sensing the impossible could maybe possibly be done, began to root CB on.

Encouragement Everywhere
With encouragement from both Dancer and the railbirds, CB worked a 0:30.1 third quarter and came home in 30 seconds flat, completing a spectacular 2:01 mile on the muddy, drenched twice-around MR oval.

That was more than 24 months ago, but CB and Dancer didn't forget, readily agreeing to appear tomorrow.

Monticello Raceway, Lady Luck and the weatherman didn't forget CB either. Lady Luck gave him the rail in the six-horse field, the weatherman promises a dry, sunny afternoon and Herb Cauters, MR's track superintendent, assured Dancer that barring unexpected rain, the racing strip would be lightning fast. If all holds up, CB can go after the time and money marks.

Favorite Against Five
With the inside post, CB will probably be the favorite going against five other pacers, all of them highly regarded and each holding lifetime marks under 2:00. CB just might be pushed to that new record.

Starting next to the Dancer-driven gelding is Song Cycle (Billy Shuter) from the two, followed by Bill Houghton's Meadow Paige from the three, H. A. Meadowlands, driven by Ronnie Feagan out of the four slot, Bob Camper's Murdock Hanover (post position five) and on the far outside, King Omaha, who will be reined by Lucien Fontaine.

For Stan Dancer, Mr. Harness Racing himself, it will be a happy return to CB's sulky. In Cardigan's last two starts, Stan's nephew, Harold (Sonny) Jr. and brother Vernon have piloted the gelding.

With Sonny doing the guiding, CB turned away True Duane at Roosevelt Raceway in 1:59.4, proving he still has the speed to compete with the best aged pacers around. Tomorrow afternoon will tell if he can still compete against the record book.

Janes, who was drafted ninth by the Philadelphia Phillies, viously made it as a freshman, marking the second year he has made the DUSO's Newburgh, 15-1-2 overall and 5-0-1 in DUSO, also had the Player-of-the-Year and first year coach, Ralph Petrillo Sr., received Coach-of-the-Year honors. The Goldbacks add Section Nine's Class I crown to the DUSO flag.

Middletown and Port Jervis each placed one on the team. A trio of Maroons were accorded honorable mention status. Peter Helmich, a junior who fired a nine-inning no-hitter against Middletown, joins teammates Harry Lyons (catcher) and first baseman John Schatzel.

Janes, a right hander, snapped the school's streak of 20 in a non-league contest. Helmich, in the Middletown clash, whiffed 19, which may be a league record for nine frames.

Janes wound up 2-1-1 in DUSO and 2-1-2 overall. His counterpart, the Goldbacks' John Hunter, dominated the league stats with a perfect 4-0 (8-0 overall) mark. A 1967 honorable mention, Hunter won Player-of-the-Year kudos.

Rios, who has a promising future in store, batted .333 for KHS in circuit outings and .350 overall. He is a sure bet to be drafted after his senior year in 1969, with pro scouts already hot on his heels filling out scouting reports. He was the lone KHS performer to hit over .300 in league action.

Other NFA players chosen were first sacker Ken Barto, the league batting champ at .421, Nick Buccell, a repeater at third, Joe Jantz and repeater Wayne Youngs were two of the outfielders.

The third picket went to Fran Keane of Port while Middletown had only catcher Al and 2-1-2 overall. His coun-

Cardigan Bay's Quest: "First Million Dollar Baby"

By MIKE HELFNER
(Freeman Sports Staff)

Tomorrow is a very big day in the life of Cardigan Bay, harness racing's money-winning standardbred horse.

Cardigan Bay, who stands just $15,000 short of becoming the sport's first competitor to earn $1 million, returns to the scene of one of his most memorable races, continuing his quest for that "supposedly unreachable" title of "Millionaire."

Tomorrow afternoon, CB, as trainer-driver and co-owner Stanley Dancer lovingly calls the New Zealand imported gelding, has an excellent chance to cut that $15,000 deficit in half. He is entered in the afternoon's feature race, the Catskill Pace at Monticello Raceway.

The Mighty M, which normally cards four double-headers a year, scheduled an additional day-night program tomorrow

(the regular four are later) on a somewhat short-notice basis to make up for the day MR was closed in memorial to the late Sen. Robert F. Kennedy.

Special Attraction Wanted
Monticello Raceway prexy Leon Greenberg wanted a special attraction for this extra added afternoon, so he moved the Catskill ahead from the evening's program to the afternoon stanza.

Greenberg went all out in an effort to get CB, a darling of the fans, and sure enough, Greenberg landed the 12-year-old gelding.

CB captured the hearts of Monticello regulars two years ago with a "sheer guts" attempt, in the rain, at the Sullivan County oval's pacing standard.

Rated as one of the gamest pacers ever to campaign in front of the sulky, CB staged a show for the hardy patrons that braved the driving rain.

The night was May 28, 1956, and CB's boss, Dancer, said "We're here, the public's here and although we don't stand a chance of even getting close to the record, we're going to give them what they came to see."

So out went Dancer and Cardigan, periling almost unbelievable and surely impossible circumstances to give the fans at least an attempt, though utterly futile, at the track's record for pacers.

Using a prompter in the time trial, CB went the first quarter in 0:30.3 and the half in an almost unbelievable 1:00.4. All of a sudden, eyes began to blink. The crowd, 9,554 strong, sensing the impossible could maybe possibly be done, began to root CB on.

Encouragement Everywhere

With encouragement from both Dancer and the railbirds, CB worked a 0:30.1 third quarter and came home in 30 seconds flat, completing a spectacular 2:01 mile on the muddy, drenched twice-around MR oval.

That was more than 24 months ago, but CB and Dancer didn't forget, readily agreeing to appear tomorrow.

Monticello Raceway, Lady Luck and the weatherman didn't forget CB either. Lady Luck gave him the rail in the six-horse field, the weatherman promises a dry sunny afternoon and Herb Causers, MR's track superintendent, assured Dancer that barring unexpected rain, the racing strip would be lightning fast. If all holds up, CB can go after the time and money marks.

Favorite Against Five

With the inside post, CB will probably be the favorite going against five other pacers, all of them highly regarded and each holding lifetime marks under 2:00. CB just might be pushed to that new record.

Starting next is the Dancer-driven gelding is Song Cycle (Billy Shuter) from the two, followed by Bill Houghton's Meadow Paige from the three, H. A. Meadowlands, driven by Ronnie Feagan out of the four slot. Bob Camper's Murdock Hanover (post position five) and on the far outside, King Omaha, who will be reined by Lucien Fontaine.

For Stan Dancer, Mr. Harness Racing himself, it will be a happy return to CB's sulky. In Cardigan's last two starts, Stan's nephew, Harold (Sonny) Jr. and brother Vernon have piloted the gelding.

With Sonny doing the guiding, CB turned away True Duane at Roosevelt Raceway in 1:59.4, proving he still has the speed to compete with the best aged pacers around. Tomorrow afternoon will tell if he can still compete against the record book.

Rios, Janes Make All-DUSO Team Again

Kingston High School's baseball team, almost totally dependent on pitcher Charlie Janes and shortstop Greg Rios, Newburgh had, naming seven wound up second in the DUSO League final standings behind Newburgh Free Academy. The Maroons named on the 11-player Jr., tied in the balloting, forced er roster announced early this morning.

Janes, who was drafted ninth by the Philadelphia Phillies, viously made it as a freshman and sophomore. This year, he marked the second time he terpart, the Goldbacks' John Hunter, dominated the league stats with a perfect 4.0 (4.0 overall) mark. A 1967 honorable mention, Hunter won Player-of-the-Year kudos.

Rios, who has a promising future in store, batted .333 for KHS in circuit outings and .350 overall. He is a sure bet to be drafted after his senior year in 1969, with pro scouts already hot on his heels filling out scouting reports. He was the lone KHS performer to hit over .300 in league action.

Other NFA players chosen were first sacker Ken Barto, the league batting champ at .421, Nick Bucc, a repeater at second and Nano DiDuaro at third. Joe Detz and repeater Wayne Youngs were two of the outfielders.

The third picket post went to Fran Keane of Port while Middletown had only catcher Al and 2-12 overall. His coun-Liedy.

Record Price

SYDNEY (AP) — One of Australia's most famous paintings changed hands recently for $39,200, a record price for any work of art by an Australian. It is called "Burke and Wills" and shows the two explorers setting out from Melbourne on their epic exploration of the "dead heart" of Australia.

Also unprecedented was the full-page advertisement which the picture's owner, gallery proprietor Barry Stern, took in the Sydney Morning Herald to announce it was available. The advertisement cost him about $1,568. The purchaser is anonymous although he or she must be a private collector, as a public gallery would have trumpeted the acquisition.

Real Life Movie Script, Locomotive Out of Control

KINSELEY, Kan. (UPI)—It was right out of a tired, old movie script. A locomotive suddenly lurched forward and sped out of control at 90 miles an hour across the Kansas plains.

Only it was for real.

The driverless diesel, pulling a second diesel unit and stirring up a giant pall of dust in its wake, rushed 80 miles through five counties before a frenzied Santa Fe switchman forced its derailment on a sharp curve.

Police and highway patrolmen guarded crossings to prevent any injuries while sheriff's officers chased the unmanned engines. Only the lone ranger and the cameras were missing.

The locomotives broke free at a roundhouse in Hutchinson, Kan., and headed northwest through Reno, Rice and Barton counties before curving southward at Great Bend, Kan.

A highway patrolman north-west of Hutchinson tried to flag down the engines, apparently unaware no one was aboard.

Barton County Deputy Sheriff Dean Ratzlaff followed the train through his county. "When I first saw it it looked like a big dust storm coming down the track," he said. "I had to do between 85 and 90 just to keep up with it."

The engines were picked up at Garfield, Kan., by Pawnee County Deputy Clifford Atteberry who followed them to just west of Kinsey where they were derailed.

"When the first engine hit that siderail, it sort of lurched into the air a few feet like a fish out of water," said Atteberry. The wheels were torn off and then it hit a telephone pole. Diesel fuel was running all over the ground."

Santa Fe officials gave some thought to staging a head-on collision to stop the locomotives, might have gone if we hadn't but the decision was made to derail them near Kinsey where the secondary track they were tending at Newton, Kan.

Record Price

SYDNEY (AP) — One of Australia's most famous paintings changed hands recently for $39,200, a record price for any work of art by an Australian. It is called "Burke and Wills" and shows the two explorers setting out from Melbourne on their epic exploration of the "dead heart" of Australia.

Also unprecedented was the full-page advertisement which the picture's owner, gallery proprietor Barry Stern, took in the Sydney Morning Herald to announce it was available. The advertisement cost him about $1,568. The purchaser is anonymous although he or she must be a private collector, as a public gallery would have trumpeted the acquisition.

Real Life Movie Script, Locomotive Out of Control

KINSLEY, Kan. (UPI)—It was right out of a tired, old movie script. A locomotive suddenly lurched forward and sped out of control at 90 miles an hour across the Kansas plains.

Only it was for real. The driverless diesel, pulling a second diesel unit and stirring up a giant pall of dust in its wake, rushed 80 miles through five counties before a frenzied Santa Fe switchman forced its derailment on a sharp curve.

Police and highway patrolmen guarded crossings to prevent any injuries while sheriff's officers chased the unmanned engines. Only the lone ranger and the cameras were missing. The locomotives broke free at a roundhouse in Hutchinson, Kan., and headed northwest through Reno, Rice and Barton counties before curving south-westward at Great Bend, Kan. A highway patrolman north of Hutchinson tried to flag down the engines, apparently unaware no one was aboard.

Barton County Deputy Sheriff Dean Ratzlaff followed the train through his county. "When I first saw it it looked like a big dust storm coming down the track," he said. "I had to do between 85 and 90 just to keep up with it."

The engines were picked up at Garfield, Kan., by Pawnee County Deputy Sheriff Clifford Atteberry who followed them to just west of Kinsley where they were derailed.

"When the first engine hit that siderrail, it sort of lurched into the air a few feet like a fish out of water," said Atteberry. The wheels were torn off and then it hit a telephone pole. Diesel fuel was running all over the ground."

Santa Fe officials gave some thought to staging a head-on collision to stop the locomotives, but the decision was made to derail them near Kinsley where the secondary track they were on merges with the main line.

"There's no telling how far it might have gone if we hadn't but the decision was made to derail them near Kinsley where the Santa Fe division superintendent at Newton, Kan.

NEW YORK (AP) — "The

Goldiggers" is a variety confection

which is supposed to mind

the NBC store for a few weeks

while the owner of the hour,

Dean Martin, has a vacation. It

probably sounded like a better

idea in the pre-shooting confer-of 1968 youth in the costumes of the depression thirties and singing the old songs with a modern beat.

mature performers, dominated the

Pros Save the Goldiggers

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NE WYORK (AP) — "The

Goldiggers" is a variety confection

which is supposed to mind

the NBC store for a few weeks

while the owner of the hour,

Dean Martin, has a vacation. It

probably sounded like a better

idea in the preshooting conferences than it seemed in the pre-

It is basically a combination

beat.

That mixture, presumably would catch the whole audience

—the kids because Joey Heatherton and Frank Sinatra Jr. are starring, and the older crowd because it will remind them of Miss Heller who moved in and the good old days.

The result was a rather incongruous mishmash of amusing musical moments, one of those inescapable spoofs of "Bonnie and Clyde," some production numbers, a bit of comedy and, of course, sketches.

Somewhere the stars, Miss

Heatherton and Sinatra, got lost in the shuffle and when they appeared, it seemed they were guest performers.

A pair of real pros, both mature performers, dominated the hour: Paul Lynde and Barbara

Heller and they had a big assist from a fresh young standup comic, Stu Gilliam.

While Sinatra and Joey were just dandy singing songs like

"My Heart Belongs to Daddy" and "Exactly Like You," it was the authoritative Lynde and Heller who moved in and saved the day in the sketches.

Lynde played most successfully a downcast Clark Kent deciding at long last to reveal his true identity as Superman.

This first of 10 summer shows was nicely produced and directed. It did, however, indicate that the young stars are not as yet quite able to handle such a big responsibility.

De-Emphasis on Violence

The Thursday night rerun of NBC's "Dragnet" may be the prototype of the sort of police action show we will encounter frequently next season with a

de-emphasis on violence.

The first half of the show was simply an ill-concealed lecture on the responsibilities of the police officer to get along with civilians of the community. Then, in a real quickie of a story, Sergeant Friday managed to talk a traffic violator into giving himself up and face a $12.50 fine.

It was all very educational,

but it sure was not the stuff that gripping entertainment is made from.

By Junius

Trade Mark Reg.

A farmer used to spin a tale about a marvelous lifelike scarecrow. It was made of tin and not only waved its arms

but also every few minutes emitted a loud yell.

Mr. Brown (a friend) — Did it scare the crows?

Farmer Bell — Skeer the crows! I should say it did. Why, man, that contraption skeered

the crows so bad some of 'em fetched back corn they had stolen two years before.

Patient — I dream every night about playing baseball.

Doctor — Don't you ever dream about girls?

Patient — What? And miss

my turn at bat?

One reason history repeats itself is that so many people weren't listening the first time.

The foreman looked at the man coldly.

Mr. Bass (the foreman) —

I'm told you went to the ball game yesterday instead of coming in to work.

Mr. Blank — That isn't true, and I have the fish to prove it!

Shop Foreman (after wild party) — Gee, babe, I hope you don't tell your mother everything you do.

Blonde Cutie-pie — Of course not. My mother doesn't give a hoot one way or the other. But that husband of mine, there is a real inquisitive soul.

A farmer was explaining to a city woman what a menace insects are to farm products —

how corn borers destroy corn and potato bugs ruin potato crops.

The city cutie listened attentively, then exclaimed:

Miss Jones — And the poor dairy people. How the butterflies must bother them.

Some folks are so busy reading between the lines that they never learn the true story.

A junior clerk approached his boss and asked for a raise.

Mr. Cross (the boss) — Do

The Poor - - New Phase

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The and white support shown for his Poor People's Campaign has moved into a new phase of the Rev. Ralph David Abernethy's massive civil disobedience now being held at the Agriculture Department when they deliberately blocked entrances and dared officers to carry them to waiting buses and paddywagons. One is shown being carried from the scene. (UPI TELEPHOTO)

Even as he talked, demonstrators clogged entrances to the Agriculture Department. After several limp demonstrators were carted off to police vans, others dashed into the street attempting to block traffic. Police, some swinging clubs, moved in and hauled them back.

Later, police and Resurrection City residents confronted each other just outside the camp. The crowd was dispersed by teargas after some rock and bottle throwing and apparently no further arrests were made.

By United Press International
Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller, spurring his catch-up presidential campaign, says the National Security Council should be overhauled so it would not have to operate on a crisis-to-crisis basis.

The New York Republican, stopping in Washington on a multi-stop campaign tour, said the current National Security Council concentrates on crisis management instead of long range planning aimed at avoiding crises.

Some Examples
"Examples of this include the Pueblo incident and the bombing of Hanoi in December of 1966 in the midst of delicate diplomatic peace negotiations," he said.

Rockefeller proposed creation of an "Office of International Policy and Programs" to replace the National Security Council.

Earlier Thursday, in Chicago, Rockefeller attacked his opponent, former Vice President Richard M. Nixon, as "prophet, proven so wrong" on the Vietnam war.

He also attacked the Democratic front-runner, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey, as one who would "let us live these four years all over again."

In other political developments, Richard M. Nixon—the former vice president, speaking in Chicago, said a negotiated settlement of the Vietnam war is in the interest of the United States and its allies but no one should rule out continuing military action there. Nixon said the only way to achieve a negotiated settlement is "to give those in Paris time to achieve it."

Oregon—Sen. Mark O. Hatfield, R-Ore., endorsed Nixon and said he would accept the GOP vice presidential nomination if it were offered. Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said he would do "everything I can" to help Sen. Eugene J. McCarthy win the Democratic nomination.

10 More for Governor

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP) — Gov. Rockefeller will nail down 10 more presidential convention votes next Tuesday when the Republican State Committee meets here to name its delegates at large.

Rockefeller is expected to be among the 10 delegates designated to round out the state's 92 vote contingent to the GOP nominating convention, opening in Miami on Aug. 5.

Rockefeller won 78 of the 82 GOP delegates elected in Tuesday's primary — the other four going to Richard M. Nixon, his major rival for the party's presidential nomination.

Addition of the 10 delegates at large will raise Rockefeller's total to 88.

The State Committee will elect the at-large delegates after conducting its bi-annual reorganization meeting, at which Charles A. Schoenbeck will be re-elected state chairman.

The convention delegation is to meet immediately thereafter and is to designate Schoenbeck as its chairman.

Besides Rockefeller, the committee will name the state's two other high-ranking Republican office-holders — New York Mayor John V. Lindsay and U.S. Sen. Jacob K. Javits — as delegates at large.

Others definitely slated for at-large seats are George L. Hinman and Mrs. Dorothy McHugh, the state's national committee members, Mrs. Wilma Rogalin, as to whether Wilson should go to the convention or remain in Albany to act as governor in Rockefeller's absence.

In any event, all of the persons under consideration can be counted upon to support Rockefeller's presidential candidacy, right down the line.

Most of the Republican county chairmen, many of whom are state committee members, also are to be on hand for the meetings.

The remaining two seats will be assigned either to former Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, L., Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz, or Atty. Gen. Malcolm Wilson or Atty. Gen. Louis J. Lefkowitz.

Dewey has not indicated yet whether he wishes to be a delegate, but if he does — GOP sources said — he will be chosen.

GI Counseling

A special counseling and admissions assistance program to facilitate college aspirations of veterans returning from service in the armed forces was announced today by State University Chancellor Samuel B. Gould.

The Chancellor, who is a member of Governor Rockefeller's Post-Vietnam Planning Committee, said that servicemen uncertain as to where or how to apply can now write to the State University Admissions Assistance Center, an existing centralized organization which has expanded its scope to include specific services to veterans. The Center's mailing address is 1223 Western Avenue, Albany 12203.

HHH Victory
Delegates — Vice President Humphrey scored an apparent victory in delegate strength Thursday over McCarthy as 33 Indiana convention delegates were elected. In Michigan, McCarthy backers won a temporary court order blocking certification of Michigan's 102 delegates. Two delegates pledged to Humphrey are being challenged. In New York, McCarthy's supporters called for selection of at-large convention delegates supporting him at the state Democratic convention. McCarthy won the biggest share of district delegates in New York's Tuesday primary.

ESCALATION—Rejuvenated by the support they received at their Solidarity Day, poverty campaigners Thursday escalated their demonstrations against the government to civil disobedience. ## The Poor - - New Phase WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Poor People's Campaign has moved into a new phase of massive civil disobedience now that the "obstacle" of the big solidarity day march has been passed.

Sources within the leadership of the campaign indicated today that civil disobedience activities will be stepped up from now on. They said acts of civil disobedience were not encouraged before Wednesday's march because they didn't want to "scare away" moderates who opposed such actions.

At least 77 marchers were arrested Thursday as attempts were made to block rush hour traffic near the Agriculture Department. Police later used tear gas and billy clubs on rock and bottle throwing demonstrators on the outskirts of Resurrection City.
